Air Force 'Sky Umbrella' To Cover Inauguration

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Air Force will provide a "sky umbrella" of 425 planes for the inauguration parade Jan. 20.

The Inaugural Committee said the aerial salute will include a flight of the world's largest bombers—Consolidated Vultee B-36s. The six-engine, long-range bombers have a wing spread of 230 feet. There also will be about 50 B-29s, jet propelled Lockheed Shooting Stars, and other advanced models.

The Committee said between 30,000 and 40,000 people will take part in the parade. It will be about seven miles long and will run for two and one-half hours.

Some 40 floats and 26 bands will pass before President Truman at a reviewing stand in front of the White House.

The President will be given a 21-gun salute.

British Union Leader Warns Industry

LONDON—(AP)—A British union leader warned today of a Communist plan to disrupt British industry this year with the aim of upsetting European recovery.

Arthur Deakin, General Secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, said the Communists would seek to create industrial chaos in Britain as they did in France last year.

He added that "information has reached me recently that such a program does exist, that the Communist Party will endeavor to apply it to this country, and that August, 1949, is the deadline for action."

Deakin, who is also President of the World Federation of Trade Unions, made his statements in his union's journal, "The Record."

Off-Duty Fireman Saves 3 From Flames

NEW YORK—(UP)—An off-duty Brooklyn fireman on his way to visit friends caught two small children dropped from a blazing third-floor apartment, formed a life ring to catch their mother, then turned in a fire alarm and casually went about his business.

Walking down a Brooklyn street, Fireman George Mayer heard a woman scream. He looked up to see smoke pouring from the third-floor of an apartment building. Mrs. Ida Thompson, 30, shouted that she and her two small sons were trapped by a fire.

Mayer called to her to drop the children to him—20 feet below. Mrs. Thompson dropped Nathaniel, 3, and then Cornelius, 18 months. Mayer made perfect catches.

The fireman then enlisted two passers-by to help him catch Mrs. Thompson. They successfully broke her fall and she suffered only minor injuries. She was taken to Cumberland Hospital.

Mayer turned in an alarm at a corner box and left as soon as the engine arrived.

'Was Driving Me Crazy,' Police Told

BLAND, Va. — (AP) — A young farmer was charged with murder here yesterday after he directed officers to the mountainside where the headless body of his sister-in-law was found.

Sheriff W. M. Price said the body was found after Samuel Newberry, 30, came to Bland County jail here and said:

"I killed Catherine. You can do with me what you want to do now."

"She was driving me crazy. She was trying to take up with me."

Newberry then related a tale of horror, the sheriff said, in which he told how he shot Mrs. Catherine S. Newberry, 37, to death, cut off her head and burned it in a stove, then hauled the body four miles in a truck and dumped it on a mountainside.

Following Newberry's directions, the sheriff said he found the body about 200 feet down a steep drop from State Route 99 near the summit of Big Walker Mountain.

The body had been stripped of clothing, wrapped in a sheet tied with heavy cord, then put in a cloth sack.

Price said officers continued to follow Newberry's directions and found at the Newberry home near Mechanicsburg the hunting knife allegedly used to sever the head and, in a coal stove in the living room, charred parts of a skull and a dental bridge.

The sheriff said Newberry also told officers that:

He was not certain when he shot Mrs. Newberry but thought it was "last Thursday night." He was drinking at the time but was not drunk.

He burned the head in the living room stove the night of the shooting but waited until Friday morning to haul the body up the mountain.

The victim's husband, Ralph Newberry, 37, was at home at the time of the slaying but was upstairs, "dead drunk" and knew nothing of it.

State and County officers picked up Ralph for questioning and brought him to jail here. Price said he was in bed at home when officers arrived and was too drunk to talk.

Price said Samuel was charged with murder in a warrant obtained by Commonwealth's Attorney W. S. Dunn and is held in the county jail here.

Ruling Cuts Court Grant, Asks Refund

The Georgia Public Service Commission last night announced the granting of $1,483,000 annually in rate increases to the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company—less than half of the $3,055,600 increase requested and put into effect last month.

In the ruling, the Commission said that in its opinion the Company should refund to telephone subscribers the difference between the higher rates the Company put into effect Dec. 23, 1948, and the rates allowed in the current order.

Chairman Walter R. McDonald disagreed with the remainder of the Commission in the latest increase and said he thought it should have been substantially less.

In his dissenting opinion, McDonald said: "I feel that the Telephone Company should not be rewarded for the utter failure to meet its obligations to provide telephone service for would-be subscribers, and its unconscionable action in ignoring its responsibility to provide service to the rural areas of Georgia."

The latest increase granted is a permanent one and in addition to a $1,600,000 temporary rate hike, the Commission granted the Company a year ago, when the Company then asked for a $3,700,000 raise. And the Company got the $3,700,000 increase when it took its plea to the courts. A Fulton County Superior Court order in the Company's favor last August subsequently was upheld by the State Supreme Court.

The effect of the latest increase is to raise the Company's revenues in Georgia $5,183,000 over its revenues of a year ago.

The new rates the Commission ordered put into effect in Atlanta are, for residential users, $4.25 per month for a one-party line, $3.50 for two-party and $2.75 for four-party. Business telephone rates would be $11.75, $9.75 and $7.75 in Atlanta.

The rates in Augusta, Columbus, Macon and Savannah would be $3.75, $3 and $2.25 for residential users, and $8, $6.75 and $5.50 for business phones.

Albany, Athens and Rome residential subscribers would pay $3.25, $2.50, and $2 for one, two and four-party lines.

The rate in cities the size of Brunswick and Gainesville would be $3, $2.50 and $2 for residential service. They are scaled down through the smaller towns to minimum rates of $2, $1.75 and $1.50 for lines on magneto exchanges.

The Commission's order provides that the schedule of toll rates now in effect shall be the maximum rates for intrastate toll service in Georgia.

Two Toombs Men Freed in Mallard Case

LYONS—Two white men were freed of murder charges in the alleged lynch-slaying of Negro Robert Mallard yesterday after a swift-paced trial that lasted only seven hours.

A Toombs County jury acquitted William L. "Spud" Howell, 32-year-old farmer after deliberating only 25 minutes.

Immediately after the verdict, the prosecution asked that a murder charge against Roderick Clifton, 32-year-old farmer, be dropped. Judge Robert H. Humphrey granted the motion despite an objection by Defense Atty. T. Ross Sharp. Sharp said he wanted an acquittal verdict in Clifton's case.

Judge Humphrey said, however, it was the privilege of the Solicitor General to ask that the charge be dismissed, therefore he would grant the Solicitor's request.

The crowded courtroom echoed with whistles and handclapping when the verdict was brought in. Judge Humphrey spotted one of the demonstrators and directed Sheriff Robert Gray to collect a $5 fine. The fine was paid by the unidentified offender.

The verdict in the Howell trial which was carried on in a jam-packed courtroom was featured by the collapse of the chief State witness, Amy M. Jlard, widow of the slain man, into screaming hysterics, and the legal maneuvering of Defense Atty. Sharp who sprang two surprises on the court.

The first of Sharp's maneuvers came just before the trial opened when the attorney subpoenaed as a witness Joseph Goldwasser, of Cleveland, a representative of the widow who had planned to seek a change of venue. The move enabled the defense to exclude the Ohioan from the courtroom during the trial.

The second move came during the early afternoon when Sharp called two jurymen as witnesses.

In a rare procedure, the jurymen stepped from their box to testify that they would not believe under oath the chief prosecution witness, Amy Mallard.

The widow earlier dramatically pointed out Howell as the man she recognized among a band of about 20 sheeted white men which waylaid the family car and shot her husband to death Nov. 19. She broke down in hysteria as she recalled the blood running from the wounds of her dying husband.

Howell denied any connection with the crime in an unsworn statement, as allowed by Georgia law. He said he was "home in bed t the time of the crime," and added he did not own a gun.

Defense tactics were aimed at breaking down the story told by the widow. They brought out,

Solons' Reaction Mixed After Talmadge Talk

By ALBERT RILEY

Gov. Talmadge's address on the "State of the State" to a joint session of the General Assembly yesterday drew mixed reaction from legislators as he called for a voters' qualification law, extension of the County unit system into the general election, and creation of a three-man Constitutional highway board.

He also urged the solons to give the Minimum Foundation program for education "favorable consideration," and advocated rural hospital construction, forestry protection and other expanded State services.

The Governor touched lightly on the subject of taxation, however, and reiterated his campaign pledge that any new tax measures must carry a referendum provision.

When he had finished, there was a divergence of opinion about his speech. It ranged from Senate Floor Leader Crawford Pilcher's observation of "excellent" to the caustic comment of Rep. Charlie Gowen, anti-administration leader in the House:

"The Governor," said Gowen, "told us how to spend $50,000,000, but he didn't have the fortitude to say how we can get the money."

President Pro Tem Spence Grayson, of Savannah, called the speech a "fine presentation all the way," and Rep. E. R. "Slick" Moulton, new Floyd County representative and former GEA President, said it was a "statesmanlike address—very fine, clear and to the point."

Rep. Frank Myers, of Sumter County, a war veteran, freshman solon and former University of Georgia campus leader, said: "It was a very good talk on the whole, but I differ with the Governor on several points."

Sen Walter Harrison, of Millen, an administration opponent, said it was a very good 'talk," but that some of the things Talmadge advocated "are going to be very hard to enact." Harrison said he would like to have heard more specific recommendations made on taxes.

Rep. Frank Gross, administration leader from Stephens County, said that from the reaction shown by the House he predicted Talmadge's program would be carried out. He foresaw a fight on the number of members proposed for a Constitutional highway board, however.

Atlanta's Sen. Roy LeCraw called it a "very wonderful speech" and said that "I agree with most of it." LeCraw added, however, that some of the Governor's proposals need further study, especially those affecting the urban counties.

"It was a very wonderful talk, very constructive, and the House will carry out many of the points," said Fulton's new Rep. Jesse Walton.

The Governor, attired in a grey suit, white shirt and red tie, and with his black forelock falling over his forehead, delivered his address to a packed gallery as well as to the crowded floor of the House chamber. He was accompanied by his pretty wife, Betty, modishly attired in grey. Lt. Gov. Marvin Griffin presided.

As Talmadge called for further development and conservation of agricultural resources, he declared that money spent in protecting the State's forests "should be considered as in the nature of an investment in the future."

Talmadge strongly urged that the State appropriate $3,000,000 a

Talmadge Will Push Hike for Bus Drivers

New taxes or not, Gov. Talmadge will ask the Legislature to raise the pay of school bus drivers an average of $25 a month.

This was revealed by James Peters, of Manchester, financial adviser of Gov. Talmadge and State Democratic Chairman, in a conference at the State Office Building yesterday with educators and legislators.

According to Peters, the Governor will recommend earmarking an additional $500,000 for bus drivers' salaries in the "regular" budget which will not be contingent upon her new taxes.

The Board of Education approved a plan submitted by Former House Speaker Roy Harris and other leaders to replace the present school law with a measure which will distribute school funds more equally.

The present law distributes funds to counties on the sole basis of property tax assessments in the counties. The new law would follow an "economic index" in the Minimum Foundation Program for Education which would take in six factors to better show a county's "ability to pay."

The conferees agreed that the "floors" suggested for teachers' salaries, school buildings and other needs in the Minimum Foundation Program should not be put into effect unless money is available.

This measure of distributing school funds is expected to be introduced in the Legislature Monday, probably as an administration measure with a long list of sponsors.

Methods of financing the proposed educational expansion were not discussed at the conference.

Legislative leaders present included Sen. Crawford Pilcher, of Warrenton; Rep. John Sheffield, of Brooks County, and Rep. E. R. Moulton, of Floyd County.

BRINGS 79 DEGREE RECORD

Nassau Sun a Visitor

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

They may be short on yachts and British titles, but the poorest people in Georgia yesterday enjoyed a generous chunk of the handsomest commodity offered in such Carribean playgrounds as Nassau and Bermuda:

The weather.

Sunshine, bright blue skies and an all-time January high in temperature were not only as good as the resortists are enjoying in the Carribean—they were filched directly from Bermuda, the weatherman said.

And that coup was pulled off at the expense of Southern California, which is shivering under the worst blanket of snow since Balboa crossed it to see the sea!

"It's an unusual situation," admitted Forecaster Harry Armstrong, mopping his brow and squinting against the glare of the sun out at the airport.

But Atlantans, happily sunbathing as the mercury soared to a 79 degrees—an all-time high for January—said it was better than unusual.

Forecaster Armstrong says the temperature will begin edging downward today and by the end of the week, you can put your bathing suit back in the mothballs.

Coincidentally, the coldest January day on record was Jan. 11, 1886, when the temperature went to two degrees below zero. The lowest today will be 54 and the highest will be 64.

SUN BATHER—Jule Ann Murphy, 1256 Euclid Ave., N. E., took full advantage of the warm, sunny weather yesterday. She hung out the clothes to dry and donned a play suit to get some "mid-Winter tan."

Wallace Loses Trial Plea To State's Supreme Court

The death sentence of John Wallace, wealthy Meriwether County farmer convicted of murdering William H. (alias Wilson) Turner in Coweta County, was upheld late yesterday by the Georgia Supreme Court.

The high court immediately affirmed the verdict of the Coweta Superior Court.

Wallace's attorneys had asked a new trial on the grounds that the State had failed to show by competent evidence that the crime was committed in Coweta County. Wallace said he accidentally killed Turner in Meriwether County, where he had taken him in an effort to force a confession out of him for cow stealing. Wallace said he did not hit Turner hard enough to kill him earlier in Coweta County.

Justice Grady Head, in writing the high court's opinion, said the testimony of "expert and non-expert witnesses" was admissible in this case. The Court held the jury was authorized to find that the fatal injuries on Turner were inflicted by Wallace in Coweta County.

Two eye-witnesses to a beating said Wallace hit Turner hard enough with a gun to kill him. Three doctors held a similar view. Two employees of Wallace, who said they helped Wallace burn Turner's body, said the back of Turner's head was "knocked off."

$24 Million Housing Job

Groundwork was laid yesterday for the erection of 3,000 houses to sell for $8,000 each in North DeKalb County, the largest housing project ever to be undertaken in this section of the country.

The $24,000,000 housing project will be built by L. D. Long, contractor of Charleston, S. C., who recently put up a 7,000 house project in Puerto Rico. He has already acquired 450 acres of land in north DeKalb County.

The houses will contain five rooms—living room, dining room, two bedrooms, kitchen, bath, and one-car garage. Forty different floor plans will be used.

The project will be financed through an FHA loan. Construction is expected to begin as soon as preliminary arrangements are complete.

Speaker Fred Hand late yesterday reappointed Rep. Roy McCracken, of Jefferson County, as Chairman of the powerful State of Republic Committee in the House, and named Rep. Jack Ray, of Warren County, as Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, which will handle a major headache this session.

Rep. Frank Gross, of Stephens County, was appointed Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, as was anticipated.

Working virtually day and night of the first two days of the session, the Speaker and administrative associates named the complete committees of the House in record time. Simultaneously, Lt. Gov. Marvin Griffin completed naming the full membership of his com-

Streamliner Leaps Rails; 20 Injured

LEESBURG, Fla. — (UP)—The Seaboard Air Line's fast Miami to New York streamliner, the Orange Blossom Special, plunger off the rails into a Florida swamp last night and early reports said at least 20 persons were injured.

It was the second accident on the Orange Blossom run in as many days. Monday the deluxe train, using different equipment, left the rails near Milford, Va., and 25 persons were hurt.

The train toppled into a fill near Groveland, Fla., 35 miles south of here, last night and first reports were meager because of the inaccessibility of the spot.

Injured were brought to three hospitals here. Those listed totaled 20 but ambulance drivers estimated that from 30 to 40 passengers were injured in the wreck.

Seaboard headquarters at Norfolk, Va., said the train consisted of nine Pullmans, one dormitory car and two diners and all but the last four Pullmans left the track.

Policeman George Mays at Groveland said the cars hurtled from the rails and toppled over a 10-foot high fill, then sank in the swamp. One car was partly submerged, the officer said, and rescue workers had not yet determined if any passengers were trapped.

The double-unit Diesel locomotive rolled on for a quarter of a mile, Mays said, and then caught fire.

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—Three American fliers were killed early today in the crash of an airlift plane on its way back from a food flight to Berlin.

The plane, a C-54 Skymaster, fell about two miles east of Frankfurt's big Rhein-Main Airport.

All three crew members were killed, the U. S. Air Force announced.

Democrats Join GOPs In War on Tax Boosts

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Influential two-party support built up last night behind a move to substitute budget cuts for President Truman's tax increase proposal.

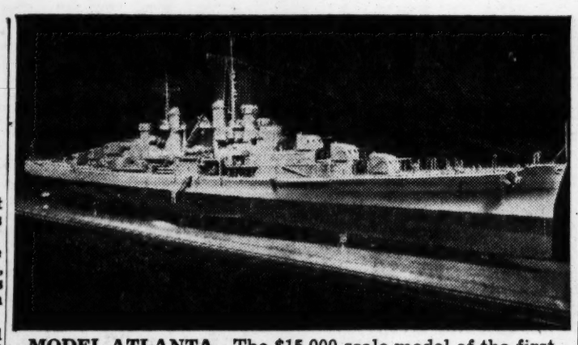

Sen. Byrd, Democrat, Virgina, predicted that the President will get less than half the $4,000,000,000 general tax boost he has asked.

"With reasonable economies no tax increase at all would be necessary," Byrd added to a reporter.

At the same time Sen. Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, Appropriations Chairman when the Republicans controlled Congress, described the Truman budget as "a wage cut for every American worker."

Indicating that Byrd will find help on the Democratic side of the Senate aisle, another influential Democrat voiced doubt that there would be any tax boost at all. Asking that his name not be used, this Senator said he believes that, in any event, an increase in personal taxes is "out of the question."

Meanwhile two Administration stalwarts in the House—Reps. Eberharter, Democrat, Pennsylvania, and Dingell, Democrat, Michigan—came out against levying of new income taxes against persons making less than $16,000 or maybe $20,000 a year.

MODEL ATLANTA—The $15,000 scale model of the first of two battle cruisers bearing the name Atlanta will be presented officially to the city in exercises at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Cyclorama in Grant Park. Robert Gregg, President of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, will make the presentation for the United States Steel Corporation, and Mayor Hartsfield will receive it for Atlanta. The cruiser Atlanta, of which the miniature is a scale model, was sunk by the Japanese in 1942. A second cruiser bearing the name of the Gate City still is in Navy service.

Dairy Groups Offer 'Deal' on Oleo Tax

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Three big dairy groups said yesterday they will drop their opposition to repeal of state and federal oleomargarine taxes if Congress will ban sales of colored oleo by stores and restaurants.

The organizations, which spearheaded the successful drive against repeal of the federal tax in the old Congress, outlined what they termed their "new policy for dealing with oleomargarine" in a formal statement.

The dairy groups said to discard oleo taxes without imposing some other controls would be unfair to dairy farmers and consumers alike. They said surveys had disclosed "widespread fraud and deception" in the sale of colored oleo as butter.

The dairy groups explained their about-face by pointing out that the federal oleo tax originally was imposed to give the Government some check on unscrupulous "butterleggers" who might try to pass off oleo as butter.

But recent Supreme Court decisions, they said, apparently have given the Government the power to regulate such alleged practices without a tax.

Jury Chief Unalarmed at County Move

Fulton County's taxpayers need not be alarmed in the restoration of committee chairmanships by the County Commission, according to Foreman R. O. Adams, of the Grand Jury.

The Foreman made this statement after all five members of the County Commission appeared before it yesterday. Commission Chairman R. L. "Shorty" Doyal went before the Jury first and spent a half hour explaining his position in favor of the Committee restoration. Commissioners I. Gloer Hailey and Jack Towns also went before the Jury in turn.

All are understood to have stated that restoration of the committee was not a blow at the new County Manager system, but a means of strengthening it.

Towns is understood to have stated that he represented all the people and that he intended to vote his convictions. He is also said to have suggested that the League of Women Voters, which opposed the change, put their own candidates in races for public office.

Commissioners Tom Camp and Jim Aldredge, who voted against the change, went before the Grand Jury together to explain their views.

Two civic clubs expressed rival opinions of the change. The Garden Hills Club condemned it, while the West Manor Club indorsed the step.

Tarver Trip To Aid WABE

Jack Tarver, Associate Editor of The Atlanta Constitution, during the coming year will bring the voices of 18 Central and South American countries into the Atlanta school system's classrooms.

Miss Ira Jarrell, City School Superintendent, announced yesterday Tarver has agreed to make a number of transcriptions which will be rebroadcast over the school system's Radio Station WABE. Tarver, to make a year's tour on South America, will interview officials, parents and others in the endeavor to make geography, customs, habits and traditions live subjects for Atlanta students.

"We are enthusiastic about the project," Miss Jarrell said yesterday after conferences with Walter Bell, Director of the Audio-Visual Education Department, and Alvin Gaines, Program Director for WABE. "We are fortunate to have the help of Mr. Tarver in this effort to vitalize our studies of South and Central America."

Acheson Hearings Set Tomorrow

Sec. Forrestal Not To Quit

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Defense Sec. Forrestal made it clear yesterday he expected to remain in President Truman's Cabinet during the four-year term beginning Jan. 20.

Forrestal sought to banish rumors of his impending resignation following a conference with the President at the White House.

He revealed, meanwhile, he was working with the President on a program for overhauling the National Security Act.

Official Denies Changeover At Bell Plant

An official of Army Air Force Procurement, in charge of the project of storing machinery in Marietta's vast Bell Bomber Plant of wartime, said yesterday there is nothing to the rumor that the plant is being considered for reopening for plane manufacture.

The statement followed a published report that "influential men in Atlanta and Marietta are at work on the proposition of reopening the plant for aircraft manufacture."

The AAFP official said machine tools are still being received for storage. Some of the machines weigh hundreds of tons and the job of getting them here and processing them for storage has been going on for two years. It would be quite a turn-about to undo such work and ship the tools elsewhere for storage, the official said.

More than $200,000,000 worth of machine tools already have been stored in the giant building, which was used for assembling B-29s during the war.

IN CIVIC SERVICE

Mrs. Harrington Gets Woman-of-Year Title

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Mrs. Eugene Harrington has been named Atlanta's Woman of the Year in Civic Service. Mrs. Harrington insists her heart turns somersaults when she thinks about the "wonderful" work of Atlanta's Red Cross volunteer services—which she heads as Chairman.

Disclaiming any personal credit for the mammoth service program, she is the self-styled "mouthpiece for all Red Cross volunteers."

Mrs. Harrington would gladly partition her "Woman of the Year" title and share it with Red Cross Motor Corps girls, Gray Ladies, nurses' aides, Canteen Corps, Entertainment and Instruction Committee, staff aides, Production Corps and the Arts and Skills Committee.

But the guiding spirit behind this maze of Red Cross volunteer activity is efficient, merry-eyed Mrs. Harrington, who has contributed more than 800 hours of service in organizing and directing the eight volunteer services.

Woman of the Year judges pointed out:

"Accepting the appointment as Chairman of Red Cross Volunteer Services early in 1948, Mrs. Harrington immediately took charge of a complete reorganization of this work. Under her leadership the volunteer services program of the Atlanta Chapter has been developed to an extent never before equaled in peace time."

At the time Mrs. Harrington assumed the chairmanship, volunteer workers were contributing less than 5,000 hours per month. Under her direction, 11 training classes for new workers were organized, and members of the various services now are giving more than 14,000 hours per month.

Judges added that Mrs. Harrington had given "a lifetime of service in many fields."

Judges on the Civic Service Committee included William A. Parker, Chairman; Dr. Allen Albert, Oby Brewer, Frank Carter, Richard W. Courts, Robert F. Foreman, Otis M. Jackson and T. Erwin Schneider.

Mrs. Harrington will be one of the five Women of the Year honored at a dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club Jan. 26, when THE Woman of the Year for 1948 will be announced.

'Keep Atlanta Ahead,' Chamber Drive Slogan

A campaign to bring "an immediate revival of the spirit of Atlanta" will be launched by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Pres. Elbert P. Tuttle and his Board of Directors yesterday issued a memo directed to "the people of Atlanta" and pledging "a militant Chamber of Commerce acting as a central clearing house for . . . an enthusiastic program to 'Keep Atlanta Ahead'."

"Today Atlanta is confronted with civic and business problems that call for immediate and vigorous attention," the statement pointed out.

Tuttle said the Chamber had conducted a survey to determine major needs of the area, evolving "31 gaps that must be filled in our social, industrial and commercial structure during the next 10 years." He said all citizens must assume a share of the responsibility for their accomplishment.

"With the vigorous and united co-operation of an increased membership, plus an adequate annual income, the Atlanta Chamber will be geared to hold the area's supremacy as a center of distribution, mercantile trade, civic betterment, educational fields, agricultural and natural resources development and selected industrial expansion," the statement declared.

During the coming seven weeks, Tuttle said, it is planned to discuss the Chamber's "Thirty-one Point Program" and the need of reviving Atlanta's spirit with citizens through round-table discussions, special group meetings, and through the Chamber's providing speakers to address clubs in this area.

That is the word of Sunday school leaders of the State who are attending the Baptist Church's annual clinic at the First Baptist Church here.

Dr. T. W. Tippett, Executive Secretary of the Georgia Baptist Sunday school work, said that the participation of 48 of the 53 churches in the Flint River Association enlargement campaign, being held in conjunction with the clinic this week, set a new record.

Der Bingle Sets Dixie-Foibles Tilt

By RITA VAN PELT

The South will be on the spot tonight at 10 when Bing Crosby welcomes two top entertainers—songstress Peggy Lee and composer-comedian-singer Johnny Mercer—to his program over WCON-ABC.

In the patter portion of the show, Bing and Johnny will exchange some good-humored banter about the foibles of the South (from which Mercer hails). Seems the two don't see eye-to-eye on certain Southern customs, and Bing will offer a few pointed suggestions about improvement, while Mercer will counter with a description of his family's plantation which will put him into the "stranger-than-fiction" category. Sounds like fun.

Berle Honored

Milton Berle, top ABC comic whose program will be heard over WCON tonight at 9, has just been chosen "comedian of the year" by readers of Comedy World, trade journal of the humor business. Costarring with the popular comedian on his program this evening will be Arnold Stang and Pert Kelton. Music will be by Allen Roth's. orchestra and Kay Armen.

Vic Visits Shriner

Songs by Vic Damone will be a feature of Hoosier humorist Herb Shriner's program on WAGA-CBS this p. m. at 6:30. Raymond Scott and his versatile Quintet will create musical interludes.

Clues and Cues

A clue to the identity of the "mystery guest" on tonight's Meredith Willson Show is this: It's a top radio personality with five children—and it isn't Eddie Cantor. The weekly funfest by Meredith and his clan of musicians, folk singers and Talking People will be heard via WCON-ABC at 10:30 tonight.

Could the brand new Stop the Music "mystery melody" be Year of Jubilo by Henry C. Work? One reader whose husband is a well-known Atlanta musician, declares 'tis so. (Hubby told her and he knows.)

Family Theater

Eddie Cantor should be right at home in his part on the WGST-MBS Family Theater show tonight at 9:30. He plays the role of an old-time minstrel man who goes modern and wins a television contract for his program called "Gentlemen Be Seated."

Sports Hints

Tomorrow WCON's 6:15 p. m. Sports Program will begin an interesting series of sports stories by Constitution staff members . . . but more about that later.

U. S. Population Up 2,500,000 in 1948

NEW YORK—(AP)—The U. S. population rose by almost 2,500,000 in 1948.

This was a net gain in human resources and consumers, or future voters and taxpayers, depending on how you look at it. Births were near the all-time record. Death was on a partial holiday. The death rate was the lowest in the country's history.

By the year's end, the United States had about 148,000,000 people. The population will probably top 150 millions this year.

The figures are given in the statistical bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Births totaled more than 3,650,000. Just under the all-time high of 3,910,000 in 1947, it said. The death rate is estimated at just over 9.9 per 1,000 population.

The excess of births over deaths is estimated at 2,200,000, the bulletin reports. Immigration added on top puts the gain in population for the year at close to 2,500,000.

Medical advances brought the infant death rate in 1948 to a new low—about 31 per 1,000 live births. This is about 40 percent under the infant death rate of 10 years ago. It means a "saving of 75,000 infant lives in 1948 alone."

There were fewer marriages. The total is estimated at about 1,850,000 in 1948. There were nearly 2,000,000 the year before.

Slick Morton's Return Bolsters 'T' Ranks

With the appointment of Slick Morton as head of the football department at Mississippi State College, we might as well change the name of the Southeastern Conference to the T-Formation League.

The passing of the old Tennessee system at Starkville leave only three of the 12 schools still adhering to attacks other than the T. Red Sanders at Vanderbilt has remained, and with considerable success, a single-wing man.

Red Drew, at Alabama, still sticks with the old Notre Dame box, but even the Crimson operated a few T plays this past season and don't be surprised if more aren't used next season.

And Tennessee, of course, still has Bob Neyland and consequently the Neyland system.

Otherwise, it's a big T party. Georgia, Georgia Tech, Florida, Tulane, LSU, Kentucky, Ole Miss, Mississippi State and Auburn all follow the T pattern, although Earl Brown's version is quite a variation from the standard attack.

Natural Outcome The popularity of the T in the Southeastern Conference isn't surprising, considering the success its proponents have had in recent years.

The return of Morton to the league will undoubtedly step up the T pace, as Slick was considered the brains behind the successful LSU clubs of a couple of years ago.

He was at VMI for a couple of years and his classy elevens made a hit wherever they played.

The fact that nine of the 12 SEC schools are employing the T is somewhat unusual in these days of argument pro and con about that particular system.

Some claim there is a swing back to the single wing or to the newfangled split T as practiced by Oklahoma, Missouri and Maryland.

But at least it isn't so down here amongst us cotton pickers.

No Fatalities One of the most important reports to be presented the NCAA meeting in San Francisco the other day was the one which announced there were no college football fatalities for 1948.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if the same thing could be said about some of our other sports, notably auto racing and boxing?

I wonder if the death of a fellow worker, which resulted in ex-fighter Gus Doraizio being arraigned on a homicide charge, couldn't be indirectly chalked up to boxing.

"People had been taunting me," Doraizio was quoted by detectives as saying. "They called me punch drunk."

Gus once fought Joe Louis for the heavyweight title.

It could be just another case of a fighter reaping the strange fruits of a cold-blooded profession.

Bagby Leads Way The fellow most folks figured would be the last to agree to Cracker terms, Jim Bagby, Jr., was the first.

James apparently is quite happy over his sale by Indianapolis to Atlanta, which will give him the opportunity of living at home with his family and playing before home folks.

That's good. Jim, a cagy veteran of the mound, could be a big help to the club and the readiness with which he came to terms with Pres. Earl Mann is an indication that he's all set to go.

With Bagby setting the pace, the other Crackers are expected to fall in line and ink their contracts without fuss or fanfare.

This will enable Manager Cliff Dapper to start Spring training with all hands on deck, happy and satisfied, which, after all, is the first step in moulding a winning club.

Mr. Phillup Space, who needs two more unit credits from Underpaid Teachers College to become a halfwit, noted that 50 students have enrolled in Bill McGowan's umpire school and with considerable originality, remarked: "Some people will do anything for money."

Owner Will Scrap Yanks For Peace

NEW YORK—(UP)—President Dan Topping, of the New York Football Yankees, said yesterday he would be willing to scrap his All-America Conference franchise and welcome the Boston Yanks into Yankee Stadium if it would bring about peace to the professional sport.

Topping, in a late afternoon press conference, said "there will be a team in Yankee Stadium next Fall, but, if there is peace, the team may be owned by someone else."

This threw the door wide open to the financially embarrassed Boston National Football League club, which already has obtained League permission to move its home base into New York.

Shortly before Topping issued his statement, Commissioner Jonas Ingram, of the All-America Conference, said at Coronado, Cal., a final attempt to bring out peace between the warring leagues would be made at Chicago Jan. 19. Ingram said he considered the chances for peace better than "so-so."

Thus the decks were cleared for action. And Topping indicated he was all for action.

The tinplate-rich Yankee President said discussions already were under way with the National League to permit the Boston Yanks, owned by Ted Collins, to play in Yankee Stadium next fall as a tenant. Both owners are fed up with heavy financial losses on their football ventures.

Black Rock Claims Best Golf Lineup

New officers and board members of the Black Rock Country Club last night heard Professional George Thomas make a claim that Black Rock has the strongest eight-man or 12-man golf team in the city of Atlanta.

At the annual meeting at which the officers for the new year were installed, Thomas proudly pointed to this list of linksmen as the club's aces who could hold their own with any amateur group from any other local clubs: Gene Dahlbender, Gordon Clay, Aaron Jackson, Ralph Barnes, Chub Kile, Dempsey Wright, Bob Morris, O. A. Dunlap, Pierce Miller, H. O. Davis, J. O. Roberts and Col. W. G. Skelton.

The Black Rock pro and tournament chairman announced plans for a busy year on the tourney front and said the two-ball foursome open tournament which proved such a success in November would be repeated as a scheduled highlight.

M. E. "Brick" Davis took over as President for the coming year at last night's affair which included a steak dinner.

Other officers are Jim Flemister, Secretary; Newt Thomas, First Vice President; O. A. Dunlap, Second Vice President, and Hal Morgareide, Treasurer.

Board members who were installed were John E. Quinn, R. O. Adams, William R. Asbell, George P. Thomas, W. J. Fowler, Mrs. Gladys B. Thomas and Mrs. D. C. Hudson.

Duration Bob, Ann Top Trials

By BERT PRATHER
Constitution Sports Writer

WAYNESBORO—Jack Curran, Atlanta sportsman, all but made a clean sweep of the Georgia Field Trial Association's members' all-age stake when he placed his big white and liver ticked Pointer, Duration Bob, First and Duration Ann, a white and orange Pointer female, an offspring of Duration Bob, second.

Third place in the stake, which drew 34 entries, went to Distinction, white and liver ticked pointer male, owned and handled by Dr. J. Earl Miles, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Duration Bob, which is trained by George Crangle at his training grounds here, made his bid Monday afternoon with two finds which he handled in his usual jam-up style.

It was apparent at that time that Bob had sewed up the stake, but no one thought that his daughter Ann, who won't be two years old until July, would grab second over some of the best all-agers in this section. But she did just that in the 15th or first brace put down yesterday morning. She cut loose with a fine effort, picking up one covey find which was handled perfectly.

Distinction's third place win came in the last brace. Near the end of the heat he found a covey just off a cotton field and handled them well. Flak, his brace mate, came up and honored the point like a gentleman. Flak is owned by John Rush, of Jacksonville.

Duration Duke, young pointer male, owned and handled by Vernon Wimbrow, of Oak Hall, Va., captured the Members' Derby championship.

Second place went to Claussen's Sassafras, who was handled by his owner, Euclid Claussen, of Augusta, while third was grabbed by Duration Ann.

Since it was the second heat of the day for Ann, her performance was not as good as in her all-age effort, but she did have a stop to flush. The other two dags were placed on class.

The open all-age competition got under way yesterday and will continue through Friday. There are 32 open all-agers entered and 10 derbys.

St. Louis Beats Long Island U

NEW YORK—(AP)—St. Louis' amazing Billikens broke through Long Island University's intricate zone defense to belt the Blackbirds, 58-47, last night for their tenth victory without a defeat this season. A sellout crowd of about 18,500 Madison Square Garden fans saw Ed Macauley held to 10 points, the lowest total in one game for the All-America center this season.

Gradys' Fast Break Upsets Brown, 50-37; Eagles Soar Over Blue Wave, 54-28

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Grady's Gray Knights, racing up and down the court as if the paying off of the mortgage on the old family homestead depended upon it, plummeted themselves into the thick of contention in the City League basketball scramble last night at Grady gym by thrashing the highly regarded Brown Rebels, 50-37, in a stunning upset.

Murphy's defending champions bolted to a 19-3 first quarter lead over Bass and coasted to their third straight loop triumph, 54-28, in the opener of the twin bill before a packed house, the packees of which didn't throw their lungs into high until the Grady-Brown melee got hot. They more than made up for it after that.

The charges of Rufus Godwin and Roy Rowlette went at it hammer and tongs from the outset, the lead changing hands eight times and the score being knotted at 2, 6, 8, 12, 16 and 29—all before the Knights went out front at 31-29 late in the third period, never again to be headed.

The West Enders were behind at 10-9 at the quarter mark but had taken over at 23-22 at intermission. The Parkway Drivers had begun to wrap it up at 36-31 at the three quarter spot on the clock.

The 14, 13 and 11 points that were fired by Don Diamond, Duvall Woodford and Jerry Seigel tell in eloquent terms that the Gradys were hot with their shots from all over the floor, but the statistics fail to reveal how Seigel, a sub center until last night, dominated the play under the baskets or how those three Musketeers were joined by Hub Dowis and Ken Ford in literally fast-breaking the Rebels into submission.

The Knights had more speed, and they "race-horsed" the Johnny Rebs to death before it was over, although Pepper Rodgers, Bobby Smith and Bill Bartlett, in particular, gave them a mighty battle before succumbing. Smith, although off form a bit, bagged 13 counters and Rodgers 11.

It was pretty much ironman stuff on each side. The Browns didn't substitute until late in the fourth quarter, and the two reserve Knights who got into the fray played only briefly.

Grady, with its second league win in three starts, also avenged a 36-35 defeat at the hands of the Brownies in the pre-Christmas city high school tournament.

Big Milford Bennett sent Murphy scurrying to its big lead by dumping 14 of his 16 points through the hoops before the first half was two-thirds over. Buck Bradberry was the other big scorer, zipping the cords for 14 counters.

Bass prevented a rout by actually outscoring the loop leaders, 17-16, for half the ball game—the second and third quarters. Albert Griffith accounted for eight tallies, and Fred Haas, Graham Bell and Jim Ransbotham played exceptionally fine floor games in spots. Murphy led, 35-20, at the three-quarter mark but a 19-point last-period flurry ran up the score.

Changing Race Ticket Numbers Charged to Pair

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Two men have been arrested in connection with changing tickets at Tropical Park, Paul Ryder, Tropical Park Police Chief, said yesterday.

He identified the men as Emil Remhild, 25, and Marshall Dimirette, 26, both of New Orleans. He said both had jail records.

Ryder said they were arrested Saturday "when a foul claim on the result of the eighth race finally upset their attempts to alter mutuel tickets."

The police chief said the youths allegedly purchased mutuel tickets on the races, went out to a car and waited for the winner to be announced. Then he said they changed the numbers on the tickets and presented them.

Faultless 2nd To Dr. Reed

NEW YORK—(AP)—Dr. Reed, a $10,000 claim for H. B. Hershon last October, eked out a photo victory over Calumet Farm's Faultless in yesterday's featured Monseigneur Purse at Tropical Park.

Third position went to L. J. Hollenbach's Roi Rouge, a half dozen lengths away.

'Raiding' Charged After Two Coaches Transfer

Condensed from AP, UP, INS Wire Reports

The University of Cincinnati yesterday hired two football coaches from neighboring Miami (Ohio) University, and a high Miami official immediately used the word "raiding" to describe the action. The men, George Blackburn, Miami head coach, and Joe Madro, his assistant, will aid Sid Gillman, recently named Bearcat tutor. The action definitely strained relations between the two schools, which have been playing each other for 60 years.

The Chicago Cardinals said that they have a half-dozen bidders for the job left vacant by the retirement of Jimmy Conzelman, including one college coach. They wouldn't name any of them, and President Jay Bennigsen said that "we're not rushing our hunt, and—take this any way you like—the coaching market may be glutted after our league and the All American Conference meet here next week.

Michigan's new boxing czar, Floyd Stevens, announced that he would not sanction a scheduled ten-round bout in Detroit between Ezzard Charles and Roscoe Toles. The bout was slated for Jan. 21. He said Toles, who is 34, had not been active enough in recent years to justify a match with Charles.

Mrs. Effa Manley, owner of the Newark Eagles, formerly of the Negro National League, yesterday filed protests with the Brooklyn Dodgers and Commissioner Happy Chandler over the signing of Monty Irvin, a former Eagle player. She said, that although she announced her intention of withdrawing her franchise from Newark after the loop disbanded, she still owns the contracts of the players. Her claim is that her contract with Irvin is the same as that which covers the operations of major and minor league baseball.

The Philadelphia Athletics have acquired the Tarboro, N. C., team in the Class B Coastal Plain League. The act brings the A's farm system to 11 teams.

Tom Wright, who played in the outfield for Louisville last season, was in Boston yesterday to visit a doctor, and signed with the Red Sox. He hit .307 with the Colonels and played three games with the Sox near the end of the season.

Michigan requested the cancellation of a hockey game slated for Princeton Friday night because the Wolverine players had missed so many classes trying to get back to school from the West Coast after the Christmas Holidays. They got snowed in en route back to Ann Arbor.

College Park Wins, 54-37

College Park scored its third straight league victory last night by defeating West Fulton, 54-37, on the College Park court. West Fulton won the B game, 38-34.

Cedric Couch led the College Park scoring with 15 points. Henson Freeman and Jerry Haesler tied for runnerup honors with 11 each. College Park led at the half, 21-19.

Auburn Defeats Tech Five, 41-33

AUBURN, Ala.—(AP)—The Auburn Tigers climbed out the Southeastern Conference cellar with a 41-33 victory over Georgia Tech here last night.

Auburn Coach Danny Doyle sent a revamped lineup on the floor and the move paid off handsomely in the second half.

It was touch-and-go through the first half. The score was tied three times during the half with the count knotted at 19-19 at intermission.

Tech took a brief lead shortly after play was resumed but the Tigers forged ahead on a toss by Roy Brawner and were never headed again.

Georgia Tech returns home Friday night to face the Alabama Crimson Tide, which upset Georgia's Bulldogs, 46-40, last Saturday in its last outing. Coach Floyd Burdette, of Alabama, plans to start Rebel Steiner, Carl Shaeffer, Gene Palmer, Dick McKenzie and Dyson Hammer against the Jackets as he seeks his fourth straight SEC victory.

Auburn moved out to a 30-21 advantage about midway in the period. Tech spurted strongly at that point and narrowed the gap to 32-31, but it was the Georgians' last threat.

The win was Auburn's first in five Conference starts, and Tech's third straight loss.

Bill Lynn, tall Tiger center who had been dividing pivot duties with Glenn Nixon, started at forward and was high scorer with 15 points.

Nixon did a great defensive job on Tech's star center, Jim Nolan, who dropped in only one field goal all night.

NATH WILLIAMS TO ENTER AUGUSTA M. A.

ATHENS—Nathan Williams, Athens High's top athlete in recent years who was declared ineligible for further basketball competition last week by the Georgia High School Association, leaves tonight for Fort Defiance, Va., to enter Augusta Military Academy.

Williams, who starred in football, basketball and baseball for the Trojans, was presented a bracelet by his teammates after last night's 56-40 victory over Gainesville High. The Trojans dedicated the game to their former star guard.

At Augusta, he will join two ex-teammates, Jack Turner and Bobby Bradberry on the Academy's basketball team.

Local 34 Wins

Chuck Kimitzer scored 23 points to lead Local 34 to a 56-40 win over Georgia Sporting Goods last night at the Sports Arena. In other games, Clarkston toppled Inman Park, 70-44, and Buckhead beat Southern Bell, 48-38.

Petrel Cagers Invade Carolina

Oglethorpe's cagers open their first road trip of the season tomorrow night in Clinton, S. C., against Presbyterian College. Friday the Petrels move to Newberry, and Saturday they invade Wofford.

GHSA Didn't Show Much Tact

By JESSE OUTLAR

It looks as if the Georgia High School Football Committee could have selected a site other than Macon to make obsolete the highly controversial penetration rule insofar as championship games are concerned.

No doubt, Mr. R. L. Doyal would have welcomed the penetration burial party into his parlor. For it has been rumored that he uttered a few harsh words about the rule after the recent Marist-Lanier playoff.

Holding that session in Macon was merely adding insult to injury, to reuse a much-worn phrase. After all, Macon is the home of the Lanier Poets and Mr. Selby Buck's boys only won one regional and two State playoff games by that method.

Our suggestion is that Mr. Samuel Glassman, the esteemed Telegraph columnist, load his typewriter and take the crude rulemakers to task for such an unpardonable act.

If the gentleman didn't desire to accept Mr. Doyal's unextended invitation, there were numerous other suitable sites. In fact, Macon is about the only place in the State where the new decision won't be popular.

For some reason or other, possibly as an appeasement measure to Lanier, the committee left penetration in effect for all games, other than State playoffs.

Of course, the penetration blackout isn't official, even in State playoffs. The Football Committee only makes recommendations to the Executive Committee. At the latest report, the Executives have never vetoed a suggestion by their lower brethren; so it's safe to say that penetration will be officially abolished in April.

Mr. Buck Unconvinced

Although, abolishment of pentration probably won't set well with Macon fans, strangely enough, it hasn't affected the blood pressure of Mr. Selby Buck, the Lanier football instructor.

He thinks Bibb County is capable of taking care of itself against any city in the State.

When asked to express his opinion on the proposed change, Mr. Buck was quoted as saying, "Regardless of what system the GHSA adopts for playoffs, the best team will continue to win the championships as they have for the past two years."

Although the statement isn't exactly clear and perhaps Mr. Buck was misquoted, apparently he means team instead of teams and championship ratner than championships. For other than Lanier we can recall no team which has acquired a penetration trophy.

There was a time before the City League was established that penetration would have been popular in Atlanta. Say, for instance, in 1946 when unbeaten Tech High outpenetrated Lanier, 59-0. And there was no chance for arguments to bob up about yardage gained, as was the case in the Lanier-Marist battle. Tech High gained something like 495 rushing, while the Poets had a minus figure of five.

But then there's no need to bring up unpleasant subjects.

Folks in Macon had rather talk about last year, when Bibb County High won State crowns in football, basketball and track. Incidentally, the latter two had nothing to do with penetration.

AUGUSTA ACE WILL ENTER NOTRE DAME

AUGUSTA — Matt Lyons, 205-pound center of last Fall's Boys Catholic High School football team, has cast his lot with the University of Notre Dame, and will enter the South Bend institution next Fall.

Lyons, who missed the Georgia All-State team by just five votes, won four football letters at Boys Catholic. He played tackle and guard before shifting to center. An All-Region choice, he was selected the outstanding player on the school's 1948 team. Lyons was Captain of that team.

He also lettered in basketball and golf, shooting in the low 80's on the links.

Indicted Men Plead Innocent

NEW YORK—(AP)—Four men indicted on charges growing out of an alleged attempt to "fix" a college basketball game pleaded innocent yesterday.

Two of them, Joseph Aronowitz and Philip Klein, of New York, told newsmen "we are getting raw deals" and added "we will prove our innocence."

The other two are William Rivlin, of New York, and Jack Levy, of Miami, Fla. Bail of $20,000 each was continued for all four.

The quartet was indicted by a New York County Grand Jury Monday after David Shapiro, co-Captain of the George Washington University cage team, had accused them of offering him $1,000 to throw a game.

Aronowitz, Klein and Levy also were indicted in Washington, D. C., by a Federal Grand Jury on similar charges.

The District Attorney's office said the four probably would be tried in about a month.

Bench Quarterbacking On the Way Out--Meyer

FORT WORTH, Texas—(AP)—Quarterbacking from the bench will be out if the free substitution rule now before the National Rules Committee is adopted, says L. R. (Dutch) Meyer, President of the National Football Coaches Association.

Meyer, Coach of Texas Christian University, thinks the new rule, which will allow free substitution when the ball changes hands or when time is out, will be adopted by the Committee. It was recommended by the coaches' group.

He does not believe the proposal to permit "the turn around center" will pass.

"The new proposal of substitutions," Meyer declares, "seems to fit the need. It will eliminate quarterbacking from the bench for the most part since a sub can't be sent in to call each play. Changes will be allowed only when the ball changes hands or when time is out. This will still permit the use of a large number of players, including defensive and offensive specialists, but will eliminate coaches calling each play."

There was a general cry last Fall that coaches were running the teams from the bench and thus were taking away the initiative of the players.

The rule to allow a center to face the backfield would reinstate a practice formerly legal.

Meyer also discussed the National Collegiate Athletic Association "purity code." He explained:

"Under present rules, athletes may be offered tuition but are supposed to have 'jobs' to pay for board and room. The danger of hypocrisy comes in there where the old 'clock winding' practices may be revived. There is much feeling in the coaches' group against such dodges."

The veteran coach said the 1950 coaches' meeting would be held in New York but that of 1951 is definitely slated for Texas.

Georgia Opens Swim Slate With Clemson

By BOB CHRISTIAN

ATHENS—Georgia's swimming team breaks the ice on the 1949 season Friday afternoon against the Clemson Tigers at Stegeman Hall here in the first of 12 meets on the new schedule.

The Bulldogs will swim in an even dozen meets during the season, in addition to the SEAAU, Southeastern Conference and NCAA championships. Georgia will be the host team for the conference meet, March 11 and 12, while the SEAAU and NCAA events are scheduled for Atlanta and Chapel Hill, N. C., respectively.

Coach Bump Gabrielsen lost four lettermen from the 1948 squad, but if some of the new men come through he expects the new tank team to be considerably stronger than last year's aggregation, which won but three of 10 meets. "At least we'll have more depth," he said.

Again this year, Theyx Stewart, Athens, is the No. 1 man. He won the SEC 50-yard free-style and 150-yard backstroke, his specialty, in last season's conference meet in Atlanta. In the latter event, Stewart set a new record with a time of 1:42.4.

Other seasoned performers returning are Divers Horace Sasser, Albany, and Jack Scott, Augusta. Ed Aderholt, Jefferson, breaststroker; Bud Battey, Rome, distances; Bud Richardson, Hendersonville, N. C., breaststroke; Joe Stroke, Rome, and Gardner Gidley, Athens, in the sprints, round out the crew which Gabrielsen expects to be in the water most of the time.

1949 schedule: Jan. 15—Clemson. Jan. 22—Auburn. Jan. 25—Emory at Atlanta. Jan. 29—Florida State University. Feb. 4—South Carolina. Feb. 10—Auburn at Auburn. Feb. 11—Pensacola Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Fla. Feb. 12—Florida State University at Tallahassee, Fla. Feb. 18—University of Florida. Feb. 25—Pensacola Naval Air Station. Feb. 26—Georgia Tech. March 2—Emory. March 5—SEAAU championships at Atlanta. March 11-12—Southeastern Conference championships, Athens. March 25-26—NCAA championships, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Oregon Coach To Stay Put

EUGENE, Ore. — (AP) — Football Coach Jim Aiken said yesterday he would remain at the University of Oregon.

He said he had canceled plans to go to Lincoln to discuss the coaching vacancy at the University of Nebraska.

Aiken said he was entirely satisfied with conditions at Oregon, whose football team he coached to the 1948 co-championship of the Pacific Coast Conference and a berth in the Cotton Bowl.

It was understood, without official confirmation, that the University of Oregon had offered him some security—he had been on a season-to-season basis—and a salary boost from the $7,500 he had been receiving.

Short Leads Athens To 56-40 Victory

ATHENS—Foreward Ted Short led the Athens High Trojans to a 56-40 victory over Gainesville here last night, scoring 26 points.

The Elephants pulled ahead in the opening quarter, but Short sank three quick baskets to give the Trojans a 16-11 lead shortly affer the second quarter got under way. They stretched it to 21-13 at halftime, and were never headed after that.

18-YEAR RECORD

Georgia Growth Captures 5 Pct. More of U.S. Income

By maintaining a rate of growth which is 43 percent more than that of the Nation as a whole, the South during the past 18 years has captured an additional five percent of the national income, according to an article by Caldwell R. Walker, Editor of the Blue Book of Southern Progress, in the January, 1949, issue of the Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore.

During this period, the total income gain for the Nation was 131 percent. But during the same period, the South had a total income gain of 174 percent.

For the South, these income gains from 1929 to 1947 range from 276 percent for Florida to 96 percent for Oklahoma. Georgia is eighth on the list with a total income gain of 189 percent during this 18-year period.

The comparative figures show that at the end of 1947, Georgia had an income from all sources of $2,904,000,000 as against a similar income of $1,005,000,000 at the end of 1929. These figures reflect the income from agriculture, manufacturing, trade and service, all other enterprise such as mining, construction, transportation, finance, utilities) and from Government.

The article breaks down the figures for Georgia as follows:

	1947	1929
Agriculture	$ 369,000,000	$ 198,000,000
Manufacturing	747,000,000	145,000,000
Trade and Service	887,000,000	274,000,000
Other Enterprise	577,000,000	257,000,000
Government	334,000,000	75,000,000
All Sources	2,904,000,000	1,005,000,000

During this period, Georgia's agricultural income increased 85 percent and its manufacturing income 275 percent.

According to the article, the figures indicate the South is succeeding in its campaign to balance agriculture with industry.

Fulton Bank Elects 2 New Directors

Erle Cocke, President of the Fulton National Bank, yesterday announced the election of two new members of the Bank's Board of Directors—George Winship, President of the Fulton Supply Company, and James C. Shelor, Vice President of the bank.

Announcement of these elections followed the annual meeting of the stockholders of the bank. At this meeting Cocke made a report on the favorable operations of the bank during 1948.

Besides his connection with the Fulton Supply Company, Winship is a Director of the Continental Gin Company and the Atlanta Gas Light Company. He is also Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Agnes Scott College, a trustee of the Berry Schools, the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee School and the J. Bulow Campbell Foundation; a Past President of the Greater Atlanta Community Chest and the YMCA, and is now Treasurer of the Atlanta Chapter of the American Red Cross. He recently received from the Atlanta Rotary Club the Armin Maier Cup as the outstanding Rotarian of the year in this community. Winship is also a member of the Piedmont Driving Club, the Capital City Club and the Central Presbyterian Church.

George Winship

Shelor has been active in Atlanta banking circles for more than 20 years. He is a former President of the Greater Atlanta Community Chest and is a member of the National Board of the YMCA. At the present time he is President of the Fulton County Board of Education and serves on several committees of the American Bankers' Association and the Georgia Bar Association. He will continue his location at the main office of the Fulton National Bank and will give the major share of his time to the bank's trust activities and its business development program.

James C. Shelor

In his report to the stockholders, Cocke called attention to the growth of the bank since organization in 1909. At that time, its capital, surplus, undivided profits and reserves were $300,000. At the close of 1948 those items were in excess of $5,800,000. During the same period, Cocke said, deposits increased from $690,267.59 to $113,876,921.40.

Cocke reported net earnings for 1948, after estimated income taxes, of $466,990.28, or $3.11 per share of the bank's $10 par value capital stock. Gross operating income for 1948 was $2,302,806.78 against $2,201,474.76 for 1947.

Approves $750,000 Rail Expenditure

PEOPLE IN BUSINESS

Former Hartwell Mayor 50 Years With Employers

Roscoe C. Linder, formerly Mayor of Hartwell, has rounded out half a century of employment with the Western Union Telegraph Company and with the Hartwell Railroad. In all those years, he wasn't absent from work a single day.

"I've enjoyed every minute of my work with these two companies, and I'm still enjoying it," said Linder. "I've had many opportunities to leave Hartwell for a better-pay job, but my friends here are worth more to me than money."

R. C. Linder

Linder began his work on Sept. 1, 1898 when the Railroad was a narrow gauge track.

As Mayor from 1936 to 1948, Linder supervised Municipal improvements that include: four miles of paving, a $4,000 filter, a $3,000 pumping station and a $11,500 fire truck. Of his service as Mayor, Linder says:

"When I was Mayor, the City had a debt of $15,000 and was paying 8 percent interest. We paid off the debt and saved the taxpayers $1,200 a year. Then we reduced taxes and later floated a $10,000 bond issue."

Long active in fraternal organizations, Linder now devotes most of his time to church activities. He is Superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School.

Cotton-Shy Russians Now Swapping Wheat

Russia and her satellite countries are far short of having enough cotton for their needs, and Russia is swapping wheat for it.

That's what a House Agriculture subcommittee making studies in connection with the 1950 cotton quotas in the United States was told yesterday by Dr. Dennis Fitzgerald, of the Economic Co-operation Administration.

At the same time, it was revealed in Washington, heavy British purchases of American cotton, wheat and flour accounted for two-thirds of a total of $36,943,000 in Marshall Plan authorizations approved by the ECA yesterday.

British approvals included $13,700,000 worth of raw cotton for delivery this quarter and $3,000,000 worth in the second quarter; wheat valued at $5,394,000 and wheat flour worth $2,250,000.

California, meanwhile, offered opposition to Southern preferences for the years on which to base cotton production quotas. Rep. White, Republican, California, urged the subcommittee to use the years 1947, 1948, and 1949 in figuring cotton acreages for 1950, if restrictions are placed on production then.

California expanded production in those years, and White said many Southern planters wanted to use prewar years for a basis.

White argued that California should not be put to a disadvantage on acreage allotments just because it had greatly expanded its production in recent years.

He argued that many of the cotton farmers in his state had migrated there from the South and, theoretically, they should be allowed to bring quotas with them.

Dr. Fitzgerald said Russia was buying cotton from India and had exchanged 200,000 tons of wheat for Egyptian cotton. Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and other countries behind the "iron curtain" are "short of American dollars" and have to go elsewhere to buy cotton, he added.

He said ECA had no objection to American cotton reaching Russia in indirect trading whereby Russia swapped some commodity to a satellite for the cotton—so long as the Marshall plan country got a commodity it badly needed.

Tobacco Belt Reassured

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An Agriculture Department spokesman yesterday assured a militant group of tobacco belt Congressmen and their constituents that no change is contemplated in the operation of the tobacco price support program.

Ralph S Trigg, Production and Marketing Administrator, gave the assurance to a group of more than 100 identified with the interests of the tobacco industry.

"We are perfectly satisfied with the way the program is now being carried out," he told the delegation that turned out to protest a rumored change in the Department's policy.

John Goodloe Named Trust Co. Director

John D. Goodloe

John D. Goodloe, Secretary of the Coca-Cola Company and former Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was elected a Director of the Trust Company of Georgia at the fifty-eighth annual stockholders meeting yesterday, Chairman John A. Sibley announced.

Goodloe was elected Secretary of the Coca-Cola Company after he resigned from the RFC last May. He became RFC chairman in 1947 after serving as its general counsel for four years.

A graduate of the University of Kentucky and Harvard Law School, Goodloe entered Government agency work in 1931 with the Federal Farm Board.

A top accomplishment was his work in rewriting and codifying the RFC Act and related legislation. He drew high praise from President Truman when he resigned to enter private business, and move to Atlanta last Summer.

A director of the Atlanta Baseball Club, Goodloe also is Secretary of Compania Embotelladora Coca-Cola, South America.

Dameron Black, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer of Trust Company retired under the bank's retirement plan after 26 years of service. He will continue to serve as a Director and maintain an office in the bank in an advisory capacity.

Malcolm Bryan, Vice Chairman, will assume the duties of Treasurer, and Steve H. Bomar, Vice President, those of Secretary.

Albert S. Adams, with the bank since 1939, was elected Assistant Trust Officer. He will continue in charge of real estate, insurance and maintenance. A native of Atlanta, Adams attended Georgia Tech and the Harvard School of Business Administration.

Annual report of the Trust Company showed net earnings for it and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Trust Company of Georgia Associates, were $1,202,876.73, as compared to $1,120,932.88 for 1947. Of these earnings, $720,000 in dividends were declared and $482,876.73 was added to undivided profits. Earnings equalled $60.14 a share in 1948.

Steel Scrap Supply Improving

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Scrap steel dealers serving district steel mills reported yesterday that supplies are improving and prices are easier.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation now is paying $41 a ton, a drop of $2 from the price at which melting scrap was stabilized during the last half of 1948.

The $43 price still is in effect for "industrial scrap"—metal returned by steel customers—which is a better quality than the material now selling for $41.

Freight Rates Upped 6 Pct. By ICC Order for South

Under an emergency order by the Interstate Commerce Commission, freight rates in the South went up six percent at 12:01 a. m. yesterday.

Meanwhile, the Southeastern Freight Association held a hearing yesterday afternoon to hear testimony on the proposal of railroads for an average reduction of around 10 percent in freight rates from the East Coast to the West Coast.

The new increased freight rates will remain in effect until the ICC rules on the application of the railroads for a general increase of 13 percent over the 1948 schedules.

Sharpest increases were in the South and East, with six percent each. The increase in the territory west of the Mississippi River was four percent, except in parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri, where the increase was five percent.

Yesterday's emergency increases apply also to water carriers and freight forwarders.

On the proposal to reduce East-West freights rates, representatives of coastal steamship lines and of the various Eastern ports voiced opposition. Gen. R. F. Fowler, Executive Director of the Georgia State Ports Authority, said that the proposed decrease in freight rates would be harmful to the business of the Port of Savannah.

The Committee will make a report to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Key Stocks See-Saw in Slow Trading

NEW YORK—(AP)—A slow pull ahead in late trading wiped out or trimmed earlier losses in the stock market Tuesday. On an average basis, the market ended just about where it started.

Turnover amounted to only 710,000 shares, even less than Monday's 770,000 and one of the slowest sessions in months.

Price changes either way were mostly fractional. The market followed a downward course the first half of the day but demand perked up enough toward the close to eliminate or pare outside losses. Some issues finished at the top marks of the session.

Interest in golds was above normal although turnover in this group was large only in comparison with skimpy trading elsewhere.

Dome Mines, largest U. S. producer of the yellow metal, closed ¾ higher at 15⅝ and Alaska Juneau added ½ at 3¾. Up a point or more were Homestake Mining at 37¼ and McIntyre Porcupine at 46¾.

Gold issues created a puzzle for market analysis last month when prices advanced in response to an overnight step-up in demand.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks remained at 65.6, with the industrial component a little higher and the rails a trifle down.

Trading was narrow. Only 954 issues changed hands, of which 381 declined and 320 advanced.

Gold shares attracted support in the curb and higher prices were paid for Kirkland Lake Gold, Wright-Hargreaves, and Cornucopia Gold. Marked down were National Fuel Gas, Waltham Watch, Creole Petroleum, Electric Bond & Share, and Kaiser Frazer, the last a new low for 1948-49. Sales of 200,000 shares compared with 190,000 Monday.

Selected rail issues edged upward two to three points in a slow bond market Tuesday but losses ranging from fractions to a point were liberally scattered through the list. U. S. Governments were unchanged. Trading in foreign liens was quiet, with Belgian 6s of '55 ahead ⅝ at one time.

1st National Re-elects All Its Officers

Stockholders of the First National Bank of Atlanta, in eighty-fourth annual meeting, yesterday re-elected all officers and directors of the bank, R. Clyde Williams, President, announced.

In reporting a favorable business situation for the bank in 1948, Williams said that net earnings for the year were $1,543,442, as compared with $1,435,468 in 1947. With deposits approximately the same as a year ago, Williams said that the bank's Consumer Credit Department enjoyed a greater volume of business than in any previous year and that the bank's Trust Department had completed its most successful year, with gross income the largest in its history.

Commenting on the business situation and the recent increase in reserves required on time and demand deposits, Williams said: "We have continued our policy of meeting the merited financial needs of our friends and customers." He said he saw no need for a "tightening of credit" by banks for justified loans.

At the end of the year, total deposits in the bank amounted to $312,108,041.20. Net operating income, before Federal income taxes, amounted to $2,203,442.22. This compared with $2,025,486.11 in the preceding year.

Williams reported that the bank now has 2,665 stockholders, of whom 1,001 are men and 1,323 are women. Half of the stockholders, he said, own not more than 50 shares each. Other holders are insurance companies, corporations, brokers, estates, trusts, schools and other institutions.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Credit Expansion Eyed by Retailers

Expanded credit facilities will be offered this year by merchants to bolster flagging sales.

But you are going to have to pay your bills promptly—or else.

That was one of the main themes yesterday of the 38th annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association in New York.

Retailers' interest in credit questions was measured by the fact that the panel discussion led by Charles H. Dickens of the Davison-Paxon Company of Atlanta drew the largest audience in ten years.

In the last few months people have been slower and slower in paying their bills, it was agreed.

Another big thing these credit men, from all parts of the United States, were agreed upon was this—good paying customers can have all the credit they want, within the limits imposed by Federal Government restrictions, but bad risks will be chopped off quicker than you can say "Charge it."

Furthermore, every effort will be made to see that you don't become a poor risk.

Overbuying will be discouraged, and lower ceilings will be placed on the amount of credit extended.

But if you do buy and don't pay promptly, credit men are ready to put the pressure on with the fanciest set of reminders since before the war.

Cotton Meet Set

The Cotton Manufacturers Association of Georgia will hold its convention May 5-6 at the Sheraton Plaza and Princess Issena Hotels, Daytona Beach, Executive Vice President T. M. Forbes announced yesterday.

Headquarters will be the Sheraton Plaza. President R. Donald Harvey, General Manager of the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, Lindale, will preside over sessions. Reservation requests must be sent to the Association's executive offices in the Citizens & Southern Bank Building here, Forbes said.

Safety Contest Open

International Harvester Company's Atlanta office is participating in a nation-wide company safety promotion contest to select the name for a safety cartoon created by a company artist, according to C. S. DeWeese, District Manager. Winner nationally will receive $1,000 in cash and an all-expense trip for a personal appearance on the company's "Harvest of Stars" radio program.

Trade Buying, Covering Advances N. O. Cotton

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here Tuesday on trade buying and short covering stimulated by favorable export news. Closing prices were firm, 85 cents to $1.10 a bale higher.

Early in the trading the market was practically unchanged but following Washington reports that the ECA had authorized Great Britain to buy $16,700,000 worth of American cotton there was a moderate rush of buying orders.

Some of the demand was attributed to price fixing for domestic and foreign accounts and some part of it was in sympathy with strength in other commodity markets.

Profit taking from the long side was the chief supply of contracts although traders said there was a small amount of hedge selling.

N. Y. Cotton Advances On Export Prospects

NEW YORK — (AP) — Cotton futures turned strong in late dealings Tuesday on a broad covering movement, stimulated by optimistic news on cotton export prospects. Final prices were $1 to $1.15 a bale higher.

Buying gathered momentum after news that Britain was granted an additional $16,700,000 ECA cotton credit, estimated to cover purchase of almost 100,000 bales of cotton. On Monday it had been reported that China had a similar quantity here. Pointing out the world demand for cotton was the declaration of ECA officials before the House Agriculture Committee that Russia and her satellites are far short of their cotton needs and that European countries will need increasing amounts of American cotton.

The Governor's Message

One does not have to agree with all his convictions to realize, and take pride in, the fact that Georgia's young Governor acquitted himself well in his initial official appearance before the State Legislature on yesterday.

Herman Talmadge's State of the State message was a well-prepared document, temperate enough to confound his critics and please all but the most rabid of his followers.

Harmony was its keynote; progress through peace its stated goal. More than once he called for an end to political factionalism, reminding the Legislators that they are "representatives of the people as a whole and not any particular group or faction." The temper of the piece was commendable, without rancor or recrimination, and the insight into Georgia problems revealed was reassuring.

Herman Talmadge is indisputably correct in his assertion that the future of our State is tied inseparably with two great factors:

1. The intelligent development and the conscientious conservation of our agricultural resources, and

2. Industrial expansion to process our raw materials at home and provide improved job opportunities for our people.

Once we surmount the obstacle of these two major problems, our other handicaps and irritants will solve themselves. The Governor was well advised to cite them first and devote a considerable portion of his time to them before getting down to specific recommendations in the field of State Government.

As to these latter, his indorsement of the Georgia Education Association's Minimum Foundation Program was expected, as was his reiteration that any additional taxes needed to finance it must be submitted to a vote of the people. Likewise was his urging of a constitutional highway board no surprise, although many, recalling the State's experience with its previous three-man Highway Board, will question the wisdom of limiting so strictly the membership.

In this connection, it is unfortunate that a great many persons have lost their enthusiasm for constitutional boards within the week. Incidentally, the Governor at least had the grace, after rendering the political coup d'etat to the constitutional Board of Corrections on Monday, not to mention the prison system in his message of Tuesday.

But he is commendably correct when he requests such long-needed reforms as the Legislature reassuming the responsibility of passing an appropriation bill, the appropriation of funds to build hospitals under the Hill-Burton Act, a more equitable distribution of welfare funds and adequate insurance coverage for State patrolmen.

His call for stricter voter qualification laws will also find general favor, although many are apprehensive lest, in allowing too much to the discretion of registrars, the way be opened to petty political reprisals. At any rate, we at least applaud his announced refusal to engage in "subterfuge" legislation to disfranchise Negroes. And, finally, we doubt the majority of Georgians could ever be persauded to ratify a constitutional amendment extending the county unit system even were they convinced that Gov. Talmadge's sponsorship of such a measure stemmed from public rather than personal interest.

On the whole, it was a creditable message and we congratulate the Governor upon it, all the while reminding him that invariably a man's actions overshadow his words.

What's Wrong With Georgia Products?

A local restaurant operator stopped by to see us.

"I read your editorials about using Georgia products," he began. "The other day, just for fun, I analyzed my menu to see what percentage of the food I was serving came from this State. I was shocked at what I found."

He handed us a menu, by each item on which he had noted its origin. Of the 60-odd dishes listed, the components of only three came from this State: sweet potatoes, frying-size chickens and pecans for pie.

"I try to buy Georgia products whenever possible," he said. "You note that I get my hens and eggs from Missouri and turkeys from Tennessee. That's because Georgia can't supply the demand."

His seafood came from Louisiana; his steaks and roast beef from Kansas City; his ham from Virginia; even his sausage was from Tennessee.

He gets squash from Florida; potatoes from California; string beans from Washington. There was a pickled peach on his salad plate. It was packed in California.

"I've tried buying Georgia canned goods," he explained. "But most of them are inferior. My customers complain when I serve Georgia beans, for instance, because they are so stringy. I don't know why Georgians can't get the strings off just as well as they do in the West . . . but they don't."

Georgia produces vast quantities of foodstuff, but only a small portion of it is of sufficient quality to be processed for the most profitable human consumption. Too frequently it is poorly handled and packed and reaches grocery shelves as culls or seconds.

A lot of Georgians would welcome an opportunity, just as our restaurateur friend, to buy and feature Georgia products on their tables and menus. But we've got to get the quality up to the point that they can be bought with assurance and served with pride.

Reader Says Schools Are Pampered

Improve Georgia's educational advantages, you say? Why, the teachers, bus drivers and children already are being pampered scandalously without imposing a new tax on the people to make it any softer for the schools. That's a reply we got when we stuck our neck out Sunday and expressed doubt that there is any opposition to the proposed Minimum Foundation Program for Education.

C. C. Neal, of Tiger, says a bus driver in his county is making more than he ever made in his life. Children don't leave home by lantern light to meet the busses—they ride to school nowadays, while he used to have to hoof it three or more miles when he was a kid. Children learned more in his generation when they didn't have books and lunchroom menus furnished free, but had to pay tuitions and work for their education, he reports.

Pay the teachers more? Why, there's a couple in his county—man and wife, both teaching—who are going to retire on a pension and ride around in a fine automobile, Neal reports. He says he never heard of a farmer being pensioned by the State and mighty few of them are buying cars these days in his section.

Neal says not to get the impression he is against education. Most of his immediate relatives—brothers and sisters, in-laws and children—are college graduates and teachers. Some of them went directly from one-teacher schools into colleges. He and his sisters all made 98 on their teachers' examination. Neal doesn't object to higher education—he merely objects to the way it is being carried on at present. There are two sides of the Minimum Foundation Program, he points out.

Miss Ira Jarrell, Atlanta's Superintendent of Schools, said she had no objections to the Minimum Foundation Program, but she feels duty bound to point out that it will cost Atlanta a great deal more than Atlanta will get out of the proposal.

From a political standpoint, she couldn't have helped passage of the bill any better. Our rural friends are not inclined to be sympathetic toward saving the big city of Atlanta any money. The proposal calls for distributing State funds somewhat on a basis of needs. Under any such system, money would be taken from the more wealthy cities and distributed to the more needy communities.

It looks like several hundred of the local bills passed in 1947 and knocked out by a Supreme Court decision concerning lack of proper enrolling and engrossing will be re-introduced this session. There was some talk about the Legislature simply passing a resolution instructing the clerks and Secretary of State to re-do the job. However, Rep. Frank Twitty, House Floor Leader, says this can't be done legally, and that the bills will have to be passed all over again.

JOHN MARVIN RAST

I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.—Luke 15:18, 19.

Time was when the prodigal son craved freedom. His father's house seemed too cabined and the estate too confined. The discipline of home was irksome.

The world beyond with its laxities and lawlessness appealed to him as supremely to be desired. That freedom he quaffed to its dregs, and as he considered his miserable plight he grew sick of freedom.

It was in his eyes to be despised and we hear him say that rather than go to the gates of unrestraint he would choose to be as one of the hired servants of his father.

The only freedom which will stand the tests of time is that derived from and safeguarded by the Father of Mercies.

Gracious God, we rejoice to do Thy will. May we perceive that Thy discipline is designed to insure the largest liberty to Thy children.

Did You Know This About Georgia?

Ralph McGill is on vacation. During his absence, this space will be used for a series of interesting articles on Georgia, especially prepared by Gus Bernd, Historical Research Assistant in the Office of the Secretary of State.

It is unlikely that political competition in this State or nation ever will rival that of 1868 when Benjamin H. Hill led a spectacular campaign to restore native rule in Georgia.

The State was under Federal troops. Rufus Bullock had just been inaugurated as Governor. The Carpetbagger-Scalawag Constitution of 1868 had gone into effect. At Macon the previous year Hill had brought about a reorganization of the Democratic Party. A great change occurred between July and November of 1868. The spark that rekindled brightly the flame of democracy in Georgia was the "Bush Arbor" rally in Atlanta on July 23 at which Robert Toombs, Howell Cobb and Ben Hill stirred a crowd of more than 20,000.

Hill, despite a malarial illness, had journeyed from Indian Springs to make the master speech of the occasion. It and his Davis Hall speech of '67 stamped him as one of the great orators and patriots of all time. Toombs grasped him in hearty congratulations, while Henry Grady, then a college youth, admired the appeal of his statesman friend with enthusiasm. Hill's "Notes on the Situation," written against the Reconstruction measures, had also added to his fame.

"Redemption" In re "Bush Arbor," someone told Hill's son: "One hour after that speech of Ben Hill, I knew that the redemption of Georgia was accomplished. All the bayonets in the United States could not have awed, nor all the wealth of the Government debauched a people who had listened to that speech." Hill's words on that day combined brilliantly scathing invective and impassioned eloquence. Said Hill: "But I warn you, the same Government cannot administer force at the South and freedom at the North." He restated a philosophy of Lincoln: "The time has come when emphatically the country must be all free or all slave."

He attacked the Fourteenth Amendment to the U. S. Constitution as a "disfranchisement of the intelligent, virtuous and educated," said it meant submission by Georgia to government by ignorance and fraud and to "Union of unequal States in order to get readmission to the Union." With words of confidence in the future, Hill exclaimed: "I tell you that the day is coming when the judges shall be in the prisoners' box, and the persecutors shall be clamoring for mercy . . . When liberty shall return; when the law shall be again respected, and good men shall again be our rulers, we must gather all the journals, and constitutions, and enactments, and records of every character of the conventions and assemblies, thus forced upon us by force, and fraud, and usurpation, and, catching fire from heaven, burn them up forever! . . . And right here, my countrymen, I want you to understand that I am a candidate but for one office on earth . . . let the office be mine to kindle the flames." Incidentally, Hill held office later in both House and Senate of the U. S. Congress.

Tickets The Democratic ticket of that year was headed by Horatio Seymour for President; the Republican by Gen. U. S. Grant. When Hill spoke in New York City, he pointed out that the Georgia Legislature had granted civil rights to Negroes before Congress passed the Reconstruction Civil Rights Bill. In Georgia the Seymour electors included such statesmen as John B. Gordon, Augustus O. Bacon and Raphael J. Moses, triumphed about two to one. Grant became President, but Georgia had become the first former State of the Confederacy to thwart Carpetbagger-Scalawag-Radical rule effectively.

Joel Chandler Harris has left us a vivid summary of Hill's fight: "His voice rang like a trumpet through the State, yet murky with the smoke of battle. As he called on Georgians to rally once more and defend with the ballot the liberties they had lost by the sword, he stirred the hearts of the people and aroused them to a sense of their duty. And then he went on the hustings and made a campaign through the State. It is a campaign which must remain without a parallel in the history of the State. The circumstances under which it was made can never be repeated. And if they could, there is no longer a Ben Hill to take advantage of them. . . ."

Union When Reconstruction became an accomplished fact, Hill acquiesced finally, saying: "It will be easier to reconcile the South to the Union than to reconcile the North to the Constitution. . . . The present proposition became the law of my country, and I shall, as a good citizen, support it, and with equal cheerfulness, whether I voted for it or against it. . . ." Throughout his career, Hill strove for a Constitution Union above all else. Historian Claude Bowers calls him the "Tribune of the South." Jefferson Davis referred to him as "Hill, the faithful." The orator died in 1882 from cancer of the tongue. His statue is now in the lobby of the State Capitol.

JOHN WHEELER

A Perfect Performance

Years ago on the old New York Herald was a gay soul named Tom Geraghty from Rushville, Ind., now dead, who always wore a cane and a smile. He wanted to find out where the tick came from in New York and also to meet Evelyn Thaw, so he could send some picture post cards home to his Hoosier friends to show how well he was getting along. Through diligence and long hours, he accomplished both and had a photograph taken of himself with Evelyn, then a beautiful girl who had made something of a reputation as a public character in the Thaw case, her husband being accused of murdering the architect, Stanford White.

Mr. Geraghty used to frequent, after hours, a saloon run by Tim Shine which was so old-fashioned no lady patrons were admitted in the main section. They were confined to a small dark room in the rear which was pretty uncomfortable. Mr. Shine did not favor female drinking.

Theories Being a social man, Tom struck up a conversation one night with a husky patron, who rated himself something of a psychoanalyst when it came to the so-called fairer and weaker sex. He began to expound his thories, which proved to be entertaining to most of the customers in this emporium where no one would get arrested if he bought a drink.

"Women like to be treated rough," said this expert, "and, when I say rough, that's what I mean. Now, you take my girl. We had a little argument last night, and I hit her on the chin pretty nearly as hard as old Jim Jeffries could punch. When she came to, was she mad? I should say not. She was just as sweet and kissed me and forgot all about the row."

Having captivated his audience, the gent bought a drink all around, and added:

"I'm going to try it on all women I meet from now on."

That is where he made his mistake, although he didn't realize it until later, because it gave Mr. Geraghty an idea he thought worth pursuing. "Let's go up to Hammerstein's Victoria Theater," he said to me. "The champion woman bag puncher of the world is on the bill there this week."

Before departing, my friend took the precaution to make a date to meet the woman expert in Shine's at 11:30 the next night to discuss his theories further and perhaps have a demonstration.

"I have a good-looking girl friend I would like to have you try it out on," said Geraghty. "I want to see if it works before I take a chance myself."

"Okay," responded the man who had now built himself up into a position of some importance by his talk, not to mention a few shots of straight bourbon.

At the stage door we met a tough guardian, which is usually the case, but the Geraghty smile and cane and blarney finally won out, so we got to the female bag puncher after her act. She didn't look the part when dressed, being pretty and feminine. Her muscles, concealed by a becoming costume, would cause no suspicion on the part of our friend. When the problem was explained to her, she readily fell in with our plans and agreed to meet us the next night at 11:30.

Meeting The professor, as we now called him, showed up as arranged and had lost none of his enthusiasm for his theories overnight. In fact, he seemed to think he was going to make an international reputation.

"This is Miss Musclebound, my girl friend," said Tom Geraghty, introducing the champion bag puncher. "I have been telling her about your ideas on treating women, so as to make them affectionate, and she is very much interested. You might even call her excited."

"Yes," smiled the lady innocently enough.

Well, to make a long story shorter, we paid for the drinks to get the professor in the proper mental mood, and he began to expound his theory, until he came to the point where he felt a demonstration was called for when he made a pass at the bag puncher who, expecting it, ducked, and then let him have it with both fists. Talk about a punching bag, he was one for five minutes, being knocked off his chair and finally flat in the sawdust. The performance was perfect. What happened to his theory we never found out, but it seems he lived, because I read where he was discharged from Bellevue Hospital about 10 days later.

"And now," said Mr. Geraghty, "he'll have to start all over again."

The female bag puncher appeared as scheduled the next day at Hammerstein's.

JACK TARVER

But Not the Same Old Alec

Wellsir, I was sitting there at the press table in the House of Representatives, see, waiting for His Excellency to put in an appearance and give us the lowdown on the State of the State, when this stranger pulls up a chair and sticks out a well-manicured paw.

"If you're looking for a job as assistant doorkeeper," I say, "you want the handsome, mustached gent up there on the rostrum. His name is Hand."

"Why, Jack," says the stranger, "this is your old fellow traveler Alec Boone, Representative from Wilkinson County."

"No such thing," I returns, incensed at the enormity of his gall. "You are a fraud, sir, and an imposter. Alas, poor Alec, I know him well . . . a man of infinite venom and a wig which resembles nothing so much as an old oil mop which has been used as a yard-broom in the red clay belt. Why, that toupee you're wearing looks almost like hair."

"If it ain't, I've been took for $251.38," says Alec, for, as the novelists say, indeed it was he. "I figured it wouldn't do for the Representative from Wilkinson County to be legislating around in last year's cover crop. Besides, the old one never did look right after that night the puppy got it."

"Alec," says I, "you disappoint me greatly. Though we disagree on virtually everything but the time, I had held you in high personal regard as a man whom prosperity could not change nor his own importance impress. And yet here you turn up, your very first day in the legislative halls, looking for all the world like a fugitive from a Herpicide ad. Woe and alack, there is nothing in which a man can put his faith any more."

Incidentally, I'm sorry I didn't get a picture of Alec in his old wig and the new. You could have sold them for a thousand dollars to that company which is always asking: "Can YOU tell which is the phony?"

Reply to Medical Student

Editor Constitution: Referring to the letter signed "Medical Student" inquiring if we should build the plaza instead of using the funds for a larger city hospital.

It is unfortunate that so many citizens still do not know that the City Government now has nothing whatever to do with the operation, control or financing of Grady Hospital. Several years ago the City deeded the hospitals to a Hospital Authority which operates under the control of Fulton and DeKalb Counties.

The plaza is a city project, built out of bond funds voted by the people and specifically earmarked for "highways and plazas." Bond funds cannot be used otherwise than as voted, or diverted to some other governmental authority.

As to the usefulness of the plaza and its contribution to civic beauty, I am willing to leave that to the verdict of the people after its completion. There were those who questioned Atlanta's original acquisition of an airport, and the building of Hurt Park, but who would do so now?

Of course Grady Hospital should be rebuilt and enlarged, and I am sure the City Government and the people of Atlanta will join heartily in any plan for this purpose.

Mayor of Atlanta.

Baha'i Teachings

Editor Constitution: In a recent editorial there appeared a reference to the Baha'i World Faith. The way in which it was mentioned made me think that some clarification of the basic tenets of the Baha'i faith should be brought to your attention. Therefore, I hope you will print this in your paper:

The basic teachings of the Baha'i faith are these:

All of the world's religions have taught the same fundamental truths and have been expressions of the same spirit of God.

True religion is the only basis for a peaceful and progressive world society.

The fundamental purpose of religion is to promulgate concord and harmony.

Religion and science must travel hand in hand for the benefit of humanity.

There must be an unobstructed search for truth in all fields of knowledge.

All forms of superstitution and prejudice must be eliminated.

Men and women should have equal opportunities, rights and privileges.

All children everywhere should have adequate mental and spiritual education to prepare them for membership in a world society.

Extremes of both poverty and wealth must be abolished.

There should be work for all, and work should be recognized as a dignified expression of the human spirit.

An international, auxiliary language should be selected and taught throughout the world to help promote understanding and peace.

There must be a Federal World Government to maintain universal peace based on the word of God.

Some facts about the Baha'i faith that will interest you are as follows:

The Baha'i World Faith and its challenging ideas originated in Iran in 1844. Today it has members in 84 countries all over the world, and its teachings are printed in 47 languages.

Founder of the faith was Baha'u'llah, who for more than 40 years was persecuted and imprisoned by the political and religious leaders of his day. He declared that religion must show men how to build a just world and he outlined a pattern of world order.

The Baha'i faith recognizes and respects the teachings of Christ, Moses, Muhammad and the other founders of the world's great religions. In fact, one has to accept the basic truth of those teachings in order to become a Baha'i.

Members of the faith are people who formerly had different and conflicting religious backgrounds. They also vary widely as to economic and social status and nationality. But the Baha'i teachings have given them a spiritual unity under which they work for the benefit of all humanity—to them this is the true expression of religion.

The religion has no mystic doctrines or rituals. It has no priesthood or professional clergy. Services are conducted by the members themselves and include no sermons. They are for prayer, meditation and readings from Baha'i writings and the scriptures of the other great faiths.

The Baha'i House of Worship in Wilmette, Ill., on the shores of Lake Michigan, famous for its architectural beauty, was built with contributions from members of the faith throughout the world. The building annually attracts thousands of visitors from all parts of the world.

'Bloody Name'

Editor Constitution: I hear over the radio in these days phrases or words such as "young Turks" or "young Turk" applied to a group of congressmen in Washington, D. C. I denounce emphatically such a name to be given to our fine, noble and freedom-loving congressmen of our great nation.

The words "young Turks" are most terrifying words to me and to thousands of radio listeners who have suffered in the hands of cruel young Turks of Turkey.

I am sure that the commentators or persons who are responsible for this name are not familiar with the unimaginable tragedies and atrocities committeed by young Turks of Turkey. The history of young Turks is the blackest page in the history of mankind.

I recommend our fine congressmen protest against such a name.

A Change of Political Climate

WASHINGTON—It looks as if military-banker influence on our foreign policy finally is to be toned down—and high time. That inference, at least, may be drawn from last weekend's shift in the two top spots in our State Department, though President Truman was careful to say there will be no change in our foreign policy when he announced the replacement of Secretary George Marshall by Dean Acheson and appointment of James E. Webb, Director of the Budget, to succeed Robert A. Lovett, banker, as Undersecretary.

The new top officials, who will take office Jan 20, are both lawyers. Mr. Acheson steps back, after a year and a half absence, to head a department in which he has had long experience both as Assistant Secretary and Undersecretary. He was the real architect of the Marshall Plan.

This shift may become potentially more important as a change of climate if, as seems likely, it presages the eventual retirement also, though it is not expected right away, of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, a career investment banker, who left the presidency of Dillon, Read & Company in 1940 to come here as Assistant Secretary of Navy. Mr. Lovett, who served during the war as Assistant Secretary of War for Air, came to Washington about the same time from New York, where he was a partner in Brown, Brothers, Harriman & Company.

To say that the change in the State Department top post seems a healthy circumstance is not to detract at all from the great soldier and citizen and his services to the nation as military leader and statesman. But Marshall was, after all, a military man. As such he was a symbol, at the head of the department charged with direction of foreign policy, of the military which had become all too pervasive in formulation of our foreign policy.

It ramified in several directions—into diplomacy, where military men were given important assignments, as well as in the Department of National Defense itself.

The strong influence of the military on foreign policy, which is obvious to any close observer of affairs here, was noted recently in the report from the Hoover Commission Committee which studied the Department of Defense and the related Security Organization. In emphasizing that the Secretary of Defense is unable to "keep the whole process in order" because of lack of authority and too loose and diffused a set-up, the report said:

"In the result, instead of policy determining strategy, and strategy in turn determining its military implementation in terms of the size and nature of the military establishment, the tendency is in the reverse direction. To far too great an extent, the unilateral aims and policies of the military services are combining to make the strategy they are supposed to serve, and the strategy is tending to make national policy. The committee has noted instances of officers of relatively low rank adopting, in the course of their staff planning, assumptions in regard to matters of the highest policy—matters which should be decided by no less than the President acting on the advice of the National Security Council."

While the committee was speaking of a fault in organization, its comment shows how the military will move into situations to impose their influence on policy that is not, in the first instance, their concern at all.

As to why banker participation is not healthy in direction of foreign policy, it will suffice to point to the influence and relation of international finance in foreign affairs, which it has been the Administration's professed aim to curb, particularly in respect to the cartels in Germany and Japan, with some of which powerful American financial institutions formerly had connections. The Defense Department shares responsibility jointly with the State Department in occupation policy and, if anything, has been the dominant partner.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

PAT LIVINGSTON

THE QUESTION:

Do you think the President should get an increase in his salary?

THE ANSWERS:

MRS. EVA GANN, Austell, Ga., cashier—Well, let me see. I don't hardly know. If it's out of proportion, I do. If it's not on an equal with other people's, I think it should be raised. Of course, I know he has a lot of obligations and expenses that people like myself don't have. If it didn't tax or burden the people who don't make such a big salary, I'm all for it.

G. B. JONES, 308 Thompson Ave., East Point, Ga., railroad gateman—Yes, ma'm, because living costs have gone so high and income tax is going up so that I think he should have something left out of his salary. Everyone's expenses are up, and naturally, his would be higher. The condition of the country is worse, and it's a tougher job to be President and to keep up with it now than it was before the war.

ROBERT CRISP, Durham, N. C., soldier—No, I don't. I think it should be lowered. He's started taking income tax out on us. That's one reason I don't think he should get a raise. I don't think much of him as President, anyhow. I don't know why, just reasons. He ought to live off what he's getting. I know you could. If I couldn't, something would be wrong. I don't know whose idea that was about taking income tax out on soldiers. What little we get paid—they ought to raise our pay if they're going to take it out. The Government always manages to get its money back one way or another.

PAUL FLEMING, 984 Harte Dr., S. W., railway postal clerk—Yes, ma'am, and all Government employees along with him. I feel like living expenses are too high for the salary we're getting. The President's expenses of office have increased more in proportion than his salary can take care of. I think if Mr. Truman wants to add a piano to the Blair House he needs a raise.

Tax Revision, Too, Must Wait

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three general background articles on the tax situation in Georgia, designed to promote understanding of any action on taxes by the General Assembly.)

Does all this talk about taxes confuse you? Well, don't worry. It's got the experts in Georgia pretty well stumped, too. And the General Assembly, now in session for two days, isn't helping matters, either.

For example, the General Assembly of 1947 concluded that Georgia's tax laws are geared for horse-and-buggy days in a mechanized era.

So the Assembly set up a Tax Revision Committee to study ways and means of bringing some order into the chaotic tax situation.

But what happened?

The committee needs to know how much money the State plans on spending before they can devise taxes and make recommendations to meet the requirements.

THE STATE'S present income is $108,299,026, but there is talk of adding another $42,549,720 to the budget for expanded State services, mostly in the field of education.

The $42,549,720 expansion, if approved by the General Assembly, will be contingent on raising new taxes. And any new taxes, says Gov. Herman Talmadge, will be submitted to a referendum.

So the Tax Revision Committee is in a pickle. As a result, Committee Director William M. Lester says no recommendations for revising the State's tax statutes will be submitted this session.

After all, he points out, making recommendations for a $108,299,026 budget is considerably different from a $150,848,746 budget.

You may not know it but Georgia's present tax system comes from a revenue act passed in January, 1852.

Many additional taxes have been added until, Lester says, "we have in our State a hodge-podge, inconsistent and unco-ordinated system of taxation."

JUST TO PRINT Georgia's tax laws requires a five-pound, 878-page book. Lester, who edited the book, figures that the best answer to the maze of taxes, licenses and fees from which the State derives its money would be a complete new law.

How many sources of revenue are open to the State is problematical, but Lester says the total is several hundred—more than any other State in the Union.

Georgia derives slightly less than 97 percent of its income from ten major sources.

They are, by percentage: Motor fuel, 32.9; income tax, 26.9; alcoholic beverage, 9.9; cigar and cigarette, 8.5; property, 5.9; beer and wine, 3.7; motor vehicle licenses, 3.5; insurance premiums, 2.9; business licenses, 1.9, and inheritance taxes, 1.

Most of these taxes are fairly easy to collect and are direct. The two exceptions are income and business licenses and fees.

That there is widespread evasion of the income tax law of the State few will deny. Lester estimates that anywhere from 25 to 50 percent of the people who should file returns don't.

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher estimates there are around 65,000 who pay income taxes exceeding $10 among the 110,000 roughly who pay any income taxes at all. There are around 250,000 people in the State who file Federal income tax returns.

The business license fee and tax system covers everything from lightning rod salesmen ($10 per county in which solicitation is carried on) to people who operate merry-go-rounds or practice legerdemain. It covers the gamut of professional fields, including itinerants.

OBVIOUSLY many of these business licenses have never been collected and to do so probably would cost too much.

So what are the new available fields which could produce $42,549,720 in new revenues?

Most of the tax experts say the plush field would be an income tax revision, or a sales tax—or both.

Some sources say enforcement of the present income tax law would produce $7,000,000 or thereabouts.

By using this same law and cutting exemptions for a married person from the present $2,500 to $1,500, the income tax law would produce around $8,000,000, perhaps more.

But then by enforcement, reducing exemption and eliminating Federal income tax as a deductible item the total might be pushed close to $10,000,000.

That would still be $32,000,000 short of the goal so, say some, a two or three percent sales tax on all items except food, clothing and medicine might be in order. They figure that would produce the additional money or close to it.

But there is considerable resistance to a sales tax and besides the administration of Gov. Herman Talmadge has promised it will submit the matter of new taxes to a referendum.

In the final analysis, therefore, the question boils down to: How do you feel about additional taxes?

There's no need to duck the question because you may have to vote on it.

This Is Where Your Money Will Go

WASHINGTON—Everything's inflated these days, including the budget. The blamed thing weighs six and a half pounds flat. It contains 1,428 pages and all I can say is that it'll be no easy job for our Government to spend $41,900,000,000 in the next year. Getting rid of that kind of dough is work. It's also difficult to comprehend, but I may be able to give you some idea of the task ahead for the spenders by plucking out a few of the places where our dollars will go in fiscal 1940. Let's first consider the billions, themselves.

These have got to be printed on special paper impregnated with threads of red and blue silk. The Treasury figures this paper will cost $1,461,250. For printing pretty pictures on same with green ink the bill will be an even $17,000,000.

The longer I pored over the budget's fine print the sorer got my eyes and the more worried I became about the transportation of things. Every agency in the Government has an item: transportation of things. Moving things around in the Navy will cost $75,000,000. The bill for moving things at the White House will be $48. The U. S. Senate intends to spend $3,000 for packing boxes in which to haul its things. The mysterious things in all cases are unspecified.

Secretary of Interior Cap Krug intends to spend $250,000 putting out fires (which have not yet begun to blaze) in inactive coal mines. The Postmaster General figures he'll have to hand out $55,000 in rewards for the capture of Post Office robbers. The Governor of Alaska says he's got to have $64,500 to fix up his house and $1,800 to buy a new sedan.

The pipe organ at West Point is out of tune and the cost of patching that is included in the $6,280,000 for running the Military Academy. The Navy wants $2,000 for dusting and polishing its collection of ship models at Annapolis and $416,000 for laundering the shirts of its cadets.

For maintaining order among the Indians the bill will be $164,500; for educating Indians, $12,200,000; conserving Indians' health, $7,731,000; catering to Indians' welfare, $604,000, and developing Indians' art, $37,000.

We will spend $2,005,500 propagating fish; $1,316,000 investigating fish, and $10,000 keeping fish statistics. For protecting seals we must kick in $481,300 and for investigating seals, $37,400. For controlling wild animals, from lions to mice, the fee will be $1,080,000.

The rum business is so bad that the Virgin Islands Company, a Federal corporation, expects to lose $247,100. Recently it went into the bay rum trade, however, and has hopes. It's also raising tomatoes for the Winter trade in New York.

Of the $740,000,000 for the Atomic Energy Commission, $8,000 will go for newspapers. Inspecting locomotives will cost $667,000 and meat, $12,577,000.

Nut investigations (this phrase is the budget's) will cost us $289,540; I gather these will concern pecans, filberts, and possibly almonds. Controlling pink bollworms, golden nematodes, sweet potato weevils and phony peaches will nick the taxpayers $3,219,000 and probably will be cheap at the price.

The Department of Agriculture has 3,900 automobiles, but it wants 760 new ones at a cost of $1,064,400. And if you want your own copy of the budget, either for study or as a doorstop, the cost of that is inflated, too. Last year it was $5, but it only weighed 6¼ pounds. This year it's a quarter of a pound heavier and $1 costlier.

Acheson, Another Voice for Frankfurter

President Truman's selection of Dean Acheson, one of the happy hot dogs of the Harvard law cabal, for Secretary of State, begins to explain his tenacious opposition to the revelations of Communist treachery in the State Department as related by Whittaker Chambers, Elizabeth Bentley and others. Acheson was Felix Frankfurter's lawyer before the Senate Judiciary Committee when Frankfurter was up for confirmation as Justice of the Supreme Court.

Acheson and Frankfurter were sponsors of Alger Hiss and Acheson is now a law partner of Donald Hiss. Frankfurter was the only nominee in the history of the Supreme Court who required a mouthpiece. The opposition to Frankfurter's appointment followed the lines which since have been clearly developed in the disclosure of an invisible government of Frankfurter men. But it could not then go as far as it might if the hearings were held today. It has since been revealed by Harold Ickes that Frankfurter told him he picked Henry L. Stimson to be Secretary of War and that Frankfurter was the chief sponsor of Alger Hiss both for his earlier jobs in the cells of the New Deal and for his later position of power in the State Department. In that position Hiss eventually sat with Roosevelt and Stalin at Yalta when Roosevelt signed away the Orient, Poland, the Balkans and, it may develop, Western Christendom, to the Kremlin.

Alger Hiss also ran the organization sessions of the United Nations at San Francisco subject to the nominal authority of Edward Stettinius, then temporary Secretary of State, whose command of his job was so shaky that he was quickly replaced by Truman. Hiss writhed on the witness stand before the Thomas Committee last Summer in an attempt to squirm away from the Committee's insistent demand that he admit that Frankfurter was his sponsor.

"I would prefer, unless you insist," he said, "not to mention any names in my testimony that I don't feel are absolutely necessary. If you insist on a direct answer I will comply."

Finally, he said:

"Another official of the Government of the United States who strongly urged me to come to Washington—and I am answering this only because you ask it—was Justice Felix Frankfurter."

In addition to Hiss, now indicted in New York on inferior charges arising out of the dramatic allegation of Chambers that he betrayed State Department secrets to Communist spies, Frankfurter has many other proteges in the bureaus. His brother, Otto, an ex-convict with three convictions of theft by fraud, landed in a position of trust in the Treasury during the war. He was undiscovered until recently when he bobbed up again, this time in the European spending administration. Their sister, Estelle, has been a pay roll passenger on the ship of state for many years.

For unknown reasons, Acheson has not been called to testify before the Committee on Un-American Activities, although A. A. Berle, another of the Harvard law clique, testified that Acheson was pro-Russian. Berle wanted Acheson to declare himself on Hiss because Chambers, in 1939, told him that Alger and Donald Hiss were members of a "group" in the State Department who favored Russia.

Berle is one of the precocious double-domes of the New Deal and he can always make a thousand words do the work of one in muddying up an issue which he does not desire to clarify.

However, in this particular point, Berle was nailed down to certain statements and one of them was the direct admission that "when Hiss began to move up in the hierarchy with Mr. Acheson, I checked with Mr. Acheson."

On the subject of Acheson's attitude toward the Kremlin in an inquiry into charges of treachery against the United States by Russian agents, Berle said: "I felt (in the Fall of 1944) that the Russians were not going to be sympathetic and co-operative. Intelligence reports in my charge indicated a very aggressive policy not in line with the co-operation everyone was hoping for. The opposite group in the State Department was largely the men—Mr. Acheson's group, of course, with Mr. Hiss as his principal assistant. Mr. Hiss did take what we would call the pro-Russian point of view."

Truman's adoption of a Munich policy toward Russia in the face of the disclosures of treachery is further indicated by the withdrawal of Gen. Smith from the Moscow Embassy. Smith was one of the Roosevelt-Pearl Harbor political Army officers. He did not vindicate himself in the kangaroo courts which lynched Gen. Short, a fellow Army officer, and Adm. Kimmel. Far from it. However, he served Roosevelt's interests well in the Pearl Harbor episode and was promoted from lieutenant colonel to lieutenant general in a short time. In Russia, in accordance with Truman's "get tough" policy, he stood up to Stalin. The change of mood is indicated by the fact that he is now withdrawn. It will be further shown by the appointment soon of Chief Justice Vinson of the United States as Ambassador to the Kremlin.

There is more guidance in the new party line of the Communists published as a pamphlet entitled "The Miracle of Nov. 2," the American election day, distributed by Earl Browder, the former chief of the Communist Party. Browder was canned after the war for the same reason that Gen. Smith is now being withdrawn from Russia. The Russian policy changed. Russia followed a friendly policy here while she was in need. When the need vanished, Browder was fired and William Z. Foster succeeded him. Contrary to Communist custom, Browder was not destroyed. He was merely abused, shelved and left available for future duties. His pamphlet now attacks Foster as a bungler who has been responsible for the repudiation of several notorious Communist bosses by the CIO.

The return of Browder to power in the American Party is expected soon. Truman apparently knew of these changes when he saluted Stalin as "Good Old Joe" and when he made his speech at Kansas City, appealing to unidentified Moscow politicians to take an attitude of kind co-operation with the United States.

DeKalbites Get School Need Reports

More than 10,000 DeKalb County citizens last night got a preview of what County schools would be like should the State Legislature enact the Minimum Foundation Program this session.

The DeKalb residents, attending mass meetings sponsored by DeKalb Parent-Teacher Associations at 25 County schools, heard a report by civic club and PTA committees which studied the program for a period of six weeks.

The 46 committees, composed of 488 civic club members and PTA officers, gave a comprehensive report on what may be expected from the program.

To augment the reports, students of the various schools staged a variety of programs to illustrate the Minimum Foundation plan.

Students at the Brookhaven School constructed a model classroom to show how conditions would be after adoption of such a program and Tucker School students staged a skit to show how conditions are at present—with inadequate teachers, overcrowded classrooms and school busses.

The largest attendance of the night was reported at Southwest DeKalb School, where more than 700 persons gathered for the program.

TALMADGE

year, to be matched by Federal and local funds under the Hill-Burton Act to build rural hospitals.

Applauded when he declared that "votes should not be the basis upon which our highways are located," Talmadge called for creation of a three-man Constitutional highway board "free from political interference and domination."

Adding that "politics and law enforcement do not mix," the Governor urged the establishment of a civil service system within the State Highway Patrol, with provisions made for a sound pension program and death benefits."

He called for free drivers' licenses for war veterans, and then asked for an appropriations bill.

"I must ask that any tax measures originating in the General Assembly carry a referendum provision," he said.

Talmadge was twice applauded when he urged support against Federal civil rights legislation and declared that "we must restore the elective franchise of this State to people who do their own thinking and vote in accordance with their own convictions and judgement."

The Legislature, he said, should "revamp and revitalize" the registration machinery and "strengthen Constitutional qualifications for voting," so as to eliminate bloc voting. He did not call for educational qualifications, but asked for a "complete re-registration of all voters.

"My administration will not sponsor any so-called 'subterfuge' legislation," he added, however, declaring that what is done "must be fair and honest and Constitutionally sound so as to withstand attack in any court."

In conclusion, he called for "further strengthening and implementation of our traditional County Unit system in Georgia," warning that "if the County Unit system is ever abolished in Georgia, consolidation of our counties will follow just as surely as the dark of night follows the day."

A police dog that lives at 15 Griffin St., N. W., doesn't know his uniforms, an Atlanta policeman complained Monday night.

Patrolman L. C. William reported that he was bitten by the police dog when the officer attempted to arrest the dog's owner.

Williams was treated at Grady Hospital and the dog was placed under observation of the State Board of Health.

MALLARD

through cross-examination and through testimony of law enforcement officers, that Amy Mallard did not identify Howell as a member of the mob until after she herself was served with a murder warrant.

The summations in the case were sparked by a virulent attack by Attorney Sharp on the character of Joseph M. Goldwasser. Judge Humphrey had to rebuke Sharp and tell him to confine his remarks to a review of the evidence. Prosecutor W. H. Lanier urged the jury to decide the crucial question: Was the widow correct when she said that she identified Howell among the mobsmen who killed her husband?

Judge Humphrey did not charge the jury, but instructed it on points of law in the evidence.

Goldwasser, Cleveland businessman who entered the case "in the interest of justice," said he would go to Washington and appeal to Atty. Gen. Tom Clark if convictions were not obtained.

The Ohioan said he had received thousands of death threats, but he had been crusading 21 years and was not afraid. He acompanied Amy from Savannah. He carried Amy's infant son, John, when the party arrived in a police car.

In connection with the use of jurors as witnesses, a member of the attorney general's staff in Atlanta said the procedure was unusual but it had been done in other trials in Georgia.

Tuskegee Institute in Alabama called Mallard's death one of two U. S. lynchings in 1948.

Family Unity in Church Affairs

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

A mother, running her eye down a church pew, appraising the moist sprig of hair sprouting from the crown of her son's head, noting with satisfaction little sister's hair ribbon and admiring the tenor of her husband's church singing voice, has a fleeting thrill of unity that does not come in another instant of life.

Never is a family so "together," so joined, as it is in that space of time, when, all of them bathed and polished, decorous and restrained, a father and mother sandwich their brood between them in the chapel of a church and take part in religious service.

The church may be the only organization that possesses all the family at the same time.

Schools do not, though they try to achieve it by bringing parens and teachers into associations after classes have been dismissed. Civic clubs do not, though they organize Ladies' Nights and Daddies' Nights assiduously, trying to accomplish it. Sports promoters try it, offering special prices, or free admittance to wives or children.

All of these forces struggle to attain what the church has by natural design.

In the past too many churches may have erred in overlooking this advantage, by splitting up activities into men's socials, and women's work, and shoving the children into their own special recreation, destroying their finest advantage.

Sunday schools, especially on the lower level, have been pretty dominated by women, and many of them have been run through their class periods early in the day before parents actually were taken into worship at all.

This is changing.

The Institute on Christian Living, beginning tomorrow and continuing through Friday at the First Presbyterian Church, will be titled "Christianity Begins at Home." Dr. Wesner Fallaw, a forward-looking authority on church-family relations, will come to appear at two evening meetings to explain the work that has been done in educational programs in churches to establish the home as the center of a growing religious experience for the whole family.

Now the theory of the institute is very sound. It says, in effect, that there is more chance of Christianizing the family than of any other group. Jesus, they point out, spoke as though there was something "given" in the family . . . as though fathers have a clue to an understanding of the fatherly love of God, and as though children's natural love and trust, if it could be carried on from their parents to God, would make them true citizens of His Kingdom.

With no intention of intruding on deep theology, this seems exceedingly reasonable.

Apparently it has to a great number of other people, because some churches, primarily the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., expressed here in the Covenant Presbyterian Church, has appropriated quite a sum of money to working out a program of keeping the family together in their religious experiences and learning. It is said that other churches have borrowed this program in its entirety, or in part, for use in their own denominations.

As one scholarly man in Atlanta has remarked: "It is not the length of spiritual experiences that counts . . . but their depth."

Every parent, and perhaps every child over six, intuitively knows the best way to quicken religious direction is within any given family circle.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Atlanta Welcomes Return Of Dr., Mrs. P. D. Miller

Atlanta is indebted to the Druid Hills Presbyterian Church for the return of those former Atlantans, Dr. and Mrs. Patrick D. Miller, and their family here for residence. Dr. Miller took over his duties as pastor of the church on Jan. 1, after having served as minister of the First Presbyterian Church of San Antonio, Texas, since 1941.

Mrs. Miller is the former Dr. Lila Morse Bonner who practiced medicine in Atlanta with the late Dr. Stewart Roberts, prior to her marriage to Dr. Miller. She received her M. D. from the University of Virginia, and interned at Cincinnati General Hospital. She was one of the first women doctors to practice in Atlanta, and was immensely popular here. After her marriage she gave up medicine, but has been outstanding as a minister's wife, both in Raleigh, where she and Dr. Miller lived from 1935 to 1941, and in San Antonio.

The Millers brought their 13-year-old twins, Patrick Dwight, Jr., and May Bonner, with them to Atlanta, but they left their elder daughter, Belle Neel, in San Antonio to finish high school in preparation for entering Agnes Scott, which, incidentally, is her mother's alma mater.

Dr. Miller was head of the executive committee of Home Missions here before going to the First Presbyterian Church of Raleigh in 1935. He is a leading figure in Presbyterian missions, and has written a book on the subject, called "The Imperative of Home Missions."

The engagement is scheduled for announcement in the Spring and the marriage is being planned for the Autumn.

Betty's sister, Earle, will assist her in entertaining.

B&PW Club To Hold Safety Forum Tonight

Georgia's 1949 death rate from highway accidents showed a decline, but it still exceeds the national average.

Miss Mary Kilgore, Safety and Health Chairman, will conduct the forum, and Lt. E. S. Burke, of the State Highway Patrol, will answer questions.

Miss Mary Webb, of the Georgia Citizens Council, will discuss the need for legislation regarding boarding care for children; Miss Grace Hartley, of the Atlanta Journal, will discuss the Premarital Examination Bill, pending before the General Assembly, and Mrs. William McNeal, of the Community Planning Council, will report on the progress of the Atlanta Child-Guidance Clinic.

French Wind Up To Throw Big Curves

By MAYNITA GERRY
Constitution Fashion Editor

NEW YORK—Keep your eye on the ball . . . the one they're kicking around in fashion releases. The French are winding up to throw a curve—right in the midst of our so-called, new-found "simplicity in clothes."

A straight line may be the shortest distance between two points, but in clothes a curved one is invariably the most distracting. To say the least, French designs are nothing short of that . . . distracting, to be redundant.

Take, for instance, Jacques Fath's collection of American-designed, but unmistakeably-French clothes, presented yesterday by the New York Dress Institute's Spring and Summer showings. The waistlines curved in and the hiplines curved down and then out. The sleeves curved (for lack of a better word) up and over the shoulder. Like a good rumba, most of the movement was from the hips down. The tops of his dresses were moulded tightly over every curve of the body, with tiny tucks literally darting in and out to assure, almost we're afraid, immobility, and the skirts swung closer and free with all excess yardage draped, tucked, pleated, gathered (and a few we haven't found a word for yet) swelling the hemline like a bell.

Then he combined colors like a blind demon. With utter disregard for what heretofore has gone with what, he mixed such colors as aqua and royal blue in a dress of silk Shantung with wide "market-basket pockets bias and deeply pleated skirt with a shelf-like collar around the low squared (but curved) neckline of royal, and cinched the waistline with a wide (really) white patent belt.

With a black linen street dress (we were told) with a fabulously wide skirt and three-quarter, button-cuffed sleeves, he tucked in the deep V (both back and front) of the neckline a taut little buttoned-in gilet of tobacco brown handkerchief linen. This was worn with a wide (again) black patent belt.

Joseph Halpert divided his collection, fairly evenly, between rather slim and willowy clothes and others that bordered on the full-blown silhouette. Of the former, there was a black crepe (one of the few we've seen) with a diagonal side closing with tiny pink tucks stemming across from the bust and down to the waistline, and fastened with coat buttons. And on a polka-dot chiffon, black with white dots, he swirled a draped design up over the hips in front, brought it down to a rather low angle in back and looped it over into a slight train.

Mildred O'Quinn's clothes are disarmingly simple, but don't let that fool you — They're simple only in appearance. They're entirely unadorned, which means, according to this designer, that you can throw away your belts and buckles and buttons (and bows) and concentrate on construction. She did. Changeable taffetas and ribbon faille for late afternoon and early evening take a self trim of tiny bucks about the hipline, a shirred pouff band inset in the skirt, a butterfly shaped fold across the bosom, or, in the case of a black ribbon faille dress with long tight sleeves, a tremendous bow of bright yellow and red striped faille over one shoulder.

Her skirts are never voluminous, nor are they, with two single exceptions, perfectly straight. One exception is a shaft dress of white flannel with a deep slash at the skirt's center back for ease in walking; the other is a smiple little round necked, cap sleeved peacock green shantung.

If you've been wondering to whom goes credit for the shepherdess neckline, your woman is Vera Jacobs, designer for Capri. She's the one responsible for all the shepherdess prefixes you'll be seeing around this Spring, the shepherdess pleats, shepherdess apron front, and, of course, the shepherdess-tied sleeves knotted just above the elbow.

Pauline Trigere, speaks with a French accent and also designs with one—in moderation. Concise, smooth outlines with no hint of padding or corseting are shown throughout her whole collection. Sleeves in her new coats—the Venetien Domino cloak and the scimitar wrap sharp and slim and curving backward to a point like an Oriental sword (this you will have to see to appreciate) are underslung so that the armhole is almost at the elbow. Necks are kept high and banded or collared, quite often with an over-collar of sheer handerchief linen with rows of narrow rick-rack.

Tight skirts are more numerous than full ones, if necessary slashed to the knee and buttoned with big bone buttons. While Philip Mungone shows an almost equal number of both loose and fitted coats, the one we've become positively addicted to his loose, go-over-everything (even one of Jacques Faths' skirts topcoats.

Mangone has also turned out a coat-that-looks-like-a-dress, only better, and his usual array of impeccably tailored suits. Most of his suits have the longest jackets we've seen so far with deftly constructed (rounded) shoulder pads and clearly defined waistlines that fit smoothly down over the hips, rather than flare out as quite a few of them are doing.

CHECKS, PLAIDS AND PIN-DOTS —"Airflight bolero," worn over a matching black and white checked wool dress from Capri Originals, designed by Vera Jacobs, at left. Both the dress skirt and jacket are made with deep inverted pleats in back, the jacket with an over collar in white pique and lined in black taffeta. Center is Philip Mangone's black and white plaid tweed coat-dress with cuffed bell sleeve and double buttoned slit pockets on each side of a widening skirt panel. White pin-dots on steel grey tie-silk princess-line dress, right, from Mildred O'Quinn's Spring and Summer collection. The dress is topped by a separate ruched fichu.

Miss Pleasants Weds in Tiger

TIGER—The recent marriage of Miss Janie Pleasants to Douglas Warren, of Bowdon, took place at the Tiger Methodist Church.

The bride's attendants were Misses Peggy Pleasants and Joanne Ezzard.

Rev. Jack Waldrep officiated and the candles were lighted by Jim Pleasants and John Ezzard who served as ushers. Ralph Coarsey, of Trion, was best man.

After a buffet luncheon at the bride's home, to which the members of the wedding party, families of the bride and groom, and out-of-town guests were invited, the young couple left for Asheville, N. C. They are now residing in Carrollton.

Frigidaire Home Economist Tells Cooking School Plans

Gwen O'Connell, home economist for Frigidaire, has announced "Queens of Cuisine," "Cooking Is Fun," and "Let's Entertain" as the respective titles of the cooking schools to be given by Martha Logan, Home Economist for Swift and Company, Jan. 18, 19 and 20 at 9:30 a. m. in the Fox Theater.

The first will feature such delicacies as a Golden Glow Cake with a Snowy Cream Frosting rich with pecans. The cake is prepared by the quick-mix method, so for all of its goodness, there is little work involved. Other dessert treats to be featured will be a one-crust fruit pie with a tempting mint meringue and Glazed Coffee Cake to be served on a cheese tray. A meat roll, prepared with a homemade biscuit mix, Corn Oysters, and Frank Toastwiches will be on the program as main course suggestions.

"Everything has taken on a new look," says Miss O'Connell, "even grandma's pantry, for with a modern home freezer the makings of a meal are always at hand."

Many of the pastry and cake recipes Martha Logan uses next week can be stored, after baking, in the home freezer for months and brought out later for those busy days ahead. Stocking up the home freezer with extra meat, poultry, fruits and vegetables, as well as already cooked foods, is a good way to make future meal planning easier. It's also an excellent way to be all set for such emergencies as the unexpected guest, bad weather, or sickness. A Frigidaire home freezer is a super de luxe market in the home that is always open. Martha Logan will use a Frigidaire home freezer next week in her cooking school.

Most home owners aren't developing any marked passion for the time and labor consuming job of meal-getting, and to help reduce kitchen hours Martha Logan shows many short cuts and easy to follow recipes. She also features ways to glorify meal-getting. Truly, cooking and entertaining can be fun when homemakers let appliances such as the Frigidaire range, refrigerator and home freezer do the job of meal-getting for them. Once one tries, the uatter luxury of walking out on meal-getting, chances are they will let Frigidaire equipment do all the work.

"Wanta try it?" asks Miss O'Connell, "it's fun. . . ."

Oakhurst School Public Address System in Use

A new phase in school curriculum will get under way at the Oakhurst School in Decatur today when a complete public address system is put into operation.

The first in the Decatur City School System, the new machine will be controlled from the office of Mrs. J. T. Stillwell, Principal, and will be used for messages to the 11 classrooms, 10 teachers and 300 students. It will also be used for music appreciation, radio programs, fire drill announcements and for all messages to the entire student body during school hours.

Members of the PTA of the school, of which Mrs. Richard B. Brown is President, raised money budgeted to cover the cost of a radio phonograph, but through the combined interest of four fathers of pupils, R. D. England, Charles Butler, D. J. Holt and Marlin Ferguson, the purchase of a public address system was suggested in lieu of the radio-phonograph. The four men worked during the evenings installing the address system at the school as their part in the community project.

It is the plan of the school to connect the system with the lunchroom at the school for the broadcast of classical music, thereby offering the pupils an opportunity, while relaxed, to learn and appreciate fine music.

Manners a la Mode

By YOLANDE GWIN

Dear Miss Gwin:

For the past several months I have been going with the same boy who is from South Carolina and who comes to see me every weekend. Some weekends I go and stay at his home and what I want to know is should I write to his mother after each visit? I have been there about four times and each time I have written a bread-and-butter letter. Is this necessary when I know that I will be going there again and is it necessary that I write after each visit, especially if I go two weekends in a row?

OZZIE

ANSWER—Since you have already written the "bread-and-butter" letter, a repeat of this nature is not necessary. But it would be courteous to drop her just a friendly and informal note when you get home on everyday things. Such as what you are doing, how the return trip was and some reference to her friends, etc.

Dear Miss Gwin:

I have only a small apartment with one bedroom. In entertaining is it all right for both the men and women to put their hats and coats in this one room, or should I let the men put their coats and hats on a chair in the corner of the living room?

EDNA.

Answer. Let them all leave their wraps in the same room. With such small quarters it is all right. I don't think, while entertaining, it would look too nice to have a chair littered with wraps.

Major Bills Expected In Assembly Next Week

No major administration bills are expected to be introduced in the Georgia General Assembly until next week, as the lawmakers await Gov. Talmadge's important budget message Friday.

An appropriations bill to finance expanded State services must await that message.

Meanwhile, the solons have been delayed in drafting the voter qualification law Talmadge wants, pending a further study of the recent Federal court decision at Mobile, outlawing Alabama's Boswell Amendment.

Talmadge told the General Assembly yesterday he wants a voter qualification law that will not be a "subterfuge" and one that will stand court tests.

Former State Sen. A. H. S. Weaver, of Macon, is helping draft the bill, and said last night there is a possibility it may be completed in time for introduction this week.

Introduction of a bill to create a Constitutional highway board is being delayed because of a controversy over the number of members it should contain. Talmadge wants a three-man board, whereas some legislative leaders urge a 10-man board.

A bill to provide veterans with free drivers' licenses may be the only administration measure introduced this week.

The Senate conducted only one piece of business yesterday after hearing the Governor's message on the State of the State. In the upper house Talmadge's appointment of Lonnie Sweat as a member of the State Board of Education was confirmed. Sweat will succeed L. O. Smith, and his term will run until Jan. 1, 1953.

LOWER BUDGETS

State Firing Said Paying Off in 2 Units

Gov Talmadge's "firing rather than hiring" administration is paying off financially in the two major State departments.

Budget requests for the new quarter for payrolls in the State Highway Department and State Revenue Department show reductions, State Auditor B. E. Thrasher reports. The requests were approved.

Highway Director Jim Gillis is asking $601,865 for employees in the maintenance division, as compared with $730,925 last quarter and $711,848 for the corresponding quarter a year ago.. He is asking $572,814 for personnel in the surveying division, as compared with $711,123 last quarter and $298,001 a year ago. His request for personnel in the administrative division is $272,899, as compared with $284,887 last quarter and $266,625 a year ago.

Revenue Commissioner Charlie Redwine's request for personnel totaled $276,787 as compared with $304,261 last quarter and $284,041 a year ago.

The Park Department request showed an increase for personnel. Parks Director Newton Moye asked $46,905, as compared with $45,479, last quarter and only $28,425 a year ago.

CO-OPERATIVE CATCH

What You Got? Load of Liquor, Was Reply

Riding along Glenwood Avenue, near Covington Road, DeKalb Petrolmen Fred Howard and Marvin Duren noticed a heavily laden truck laboring down the street. They pulled alongside and shouted:

"What you got?"

"A load of liquor," the driver replied.

"How many gallons," the Patrolmen laughed.

"Two hundred and seventy," the driver said.

Howard and Duren pulled the truck over and inside they found 270 gallons of corn whiskey.

They booked the driver, listed as Rufus Mincey, 41, of 515 Third St., N. W., on charges of transporting illegal liquor and impounded the truck and its cargo.

Court Rejects School Bus Plea

Operation of a school bus lies in the discretion of a local school board, and not the courts, the Supreme Court ruled late yesterday.

The high court turned down a plea from parents seeking to force the Gwinnett County Board of Education to haul grammar school students from the Vance Cross Road School District to the Buford School. The parents said the bus hauled high school students, but refused to transport grammar school students.

The Court noted that all grammar school students in that community were treated alike, so the board was not abusing its authority.

CHURCH PARKING ASKED—Police Chief Jenkins announced yesterday he will ask Council's Police Committee to clarify enforcement procedures on parking bans on 10 downtown Atlanta street stretches and, if it is agreeable, they will be lifted except on Peachtree Street on Sundays to permit churchgoers to park. Davis Fight For Buford Continues

Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON—Rep. James C. Davis said today he would continue to work for appropriations for Buford Dam in spite of the fact that the Bureau of the Budget failed to recommend funds for it in the report which Congress received yesterday.

Davis said two separate appropriations, totaling $650,000, have previously been secured for Buford Dam without having been recommended by the Budget Commission.

The Stone Mountain legislator said he was surprised that no funds were recommended to begin actual construction this year in view of President Truman's statement that he favored full development of rivers for production of electric current, flood control and navigation.

TRAINING CLASS FOR ALERT, ATTRACTIVE GIRLS

A TRAINING class for beginners in the interesting and important work of handling the public's telephone calls starts soon . . . $29 a week immediately for qualified students, and 3 salary increases the first year!

BUT there's more than a good salary—sometimes there are opportunities to merit and receive someone's gratitude and praise, and always there's the feeling of doing something really important for the community. Then there's the valuable voice and personality development which produces "the Voice with a Smile" tradition.

ALERT, attractive girls will find opportunity at the Telephone Company—a good place to work.

CHANNING COPE'S ALMANAC:

Let Farmers Buy Own Livestock Remedies

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 12, 1949

Suggestion of the day: Get that garden map from the County Agent and nail it up where it won't get lost. It tells the whole story of planting the family garden. As usual, Elmo Ragsdale has done a good job of it.

FREE USE OF TALENTS

Every now and again the devotees of movements designed to better mankind get impatient at the length of time required to get people to change their ways, and propose that the changes should be made by compulsion; that is, by law.

In the interest of establishing a better "bar" (legal fraternity) in Georgia, some of our friends among the college law schools are said to be attempting to apply restrictions by law which will prevent the average person from becoming a member of the bar unless he be graduated from one our the college law schools. I don't think we ought to submit to this, our country being above all, an opportunity for everyone to educate and improve himself, with all fields open to all people. Of course, the bill won't read this way but the effect of it will be to force the night law schools out of business, except those under college patronage.

Some of the doctors of veterinary medicine are impatient at the way things are going in their field, and propose, I am told, to make it impossible for anyone to procure serums, vaccines, viruses, etc., without a prescription from the vet. This sounds reasonable but it would lead to the forcing of the vet's services upon all farmers in all fields of livestock doctoring. I doubt if the veterinarians or the farmers are ready for this. It would likely close up all avenues where the farmer could buy his remedies direct. If you and I could name the vets, we would be more inclined to accept this legislation, but as everyone knows, there are vets and vets, some of them highly responsive to their high calling and some of them completely lacking in understanding, ability, or proper temperament. I think we ought to see more evidences of their zeal for public service before we turn the field over to them.

Both in the study of law and in the practice of animal husbandry on the farm I think we should have opportunity to make the best use of our talents. I doubt if it has yet been proved that college law schools graduate better lawyers than night schools or that veterinarians en masse are ready for the responsibilities they apparently seek through a change in the laws of our State.

Could you meet with us at 6 a. m. and 12:45 p. m. at 55 on your dial?

Until then,

Channing Cope

The suggested bidding:

East	South	West	North
P	P	1S	2H
P	3H	P	4H
P	P	P

Opening lead: Jack of spades.

The question "What is normal trump support" is one that may be answered in a phrase. The requirements vary with conditions.

A partnership should, as a rule, avoid reaching a game contract in a trump suit in which they hold less than eight cards between them. So that if opener has a four card suit, responder should have four; if opener has a five card suit, his partner may support with only three, and if opener has a six card suit, he should get along reasonably well with only two in dummy, provided the supporting hand measures up in other respects.

The standard texts provide that normal trump support (for a single raise) is Qxx or xxxx. In other words, one of the high trump honors is regarded as the equal of two small ones. So that occasionally opener may find himself playing a suit contract with only seven trumps but in that case the dummy will have a high honor. The normal trump support indicated above allows for the circumstance that opener may have a four card suit. Where subsequent rounds of bidding make it clear that he has a longer suit, responder's requirements become relaxed. If opener by his rebid has shown a good five card suit responder may support if his hand is otherwise suitable, with xxx or Qx and if opener has bid the suit three times (without support from partner) a six card suit is indicated and the raise may be made with two small trumps or the lone Queen.

Supporting partner's overcall involves different considerations. Now you should no longer make allowances for the possibility that partner has a four card suit. When your partner overcalls at the level of two, you may put it down in your notebook, that he has a very good five card suit or a very bad habit. This is especially true if you happen to be vulnerable.

When I saw the above hand played South actually bid three Diamonds over his partner's two Heart bid. This was a very ill chosen call. First, because North is not obliged to respond to this change of suit. It is to be borne in mind that North is not the opening bidder and is therefore not subject to the "new suit forcing" rule. He is at liberty to check out at any time that it suits his convenience so to do. He is under duty to bid again only when his partner jumps the bid in a new suit or makes a cue bid.

Secondly, even if North does speak again after the three Diamond bid as for example by rebidding three Hearts, South will find himself with an awkward problem on his hands. Should he go to four Hearts? He then becomes assailed with certain doubts. "I wonder if partner rebid three Hearts merely because he could not stand Diamonds or did he continue bidding because he had a sound hand?"

Perhaps the best way to avoid both the risk and the problem, is to give partner an immediate raise to three Hearts. If he goes on he will find your hand a useful dummy and if he chooses to pass you should be quite convinced that you are playing the hand in the right suit. Q-10 doubleton is surely adequate support for a reliable partner who has made a vulnerable overcall at the level of two.

Dog Treks 650 Miles, Sleeps for 72 Hours

ALEXANDRIA, Minn. — (AP) — Curley, an eight-year- old Chesapeake-Labrador dog, had good reason to be fagged out.

Curley, owned by William A. Jacobson, farmer near here, was loaned to Jacobson's son, Clifford. Clifford took Curley to Billings, Mont., Dec. 1.

Dec. 23 Curley hobbled back to his farm home near Alexandria. He was cut and bruised and "just a bag of bones." His owner said he fell over and slept for 72 hours.

Distance between Billings and Alexandria is 650 miles—as the crow flies.
